Laval, Man of Power
What One Plane Could Do
Japan's Hand to the Plough
Irish Paternalism

—By Arthur Brisbane—

PIERRE LAVAL, prime minister of France, is here. Read everything he says for publications, although his most important sayings will be uttered privately.

Arriving in New York, seeing big buildings in the biggest city for the first time, he is "struck with admiration" and admires the "disciplined freedom of New York's inhabitants."

There is also some UNDISCIPLINED freedom there among racketeers, gangsters, politicians, bribe takers and givers, etc., but he may leave without learning about that.

When he returns to Paris, and tells what he saw, some Frenchmen may be inclined to take the United States more seriously than they do now, more seriously, for instance, than the French "nationalists," who tell Premier Laval, "Reject all proposals of Hoover, and make your own demands."

That idea seems fair, provided "Hoover" is permitted to adopt the same methods.

Powerful is Prime Minister Laval, most powerful Frenchman since Bonaparte. And France is more powerful than she has been in the last 120 years.

Ferdinand Touhy reminds you that Laval comes from the rugged Auvergne mountains and from poverty, and deserves his success.

When he was helping his father, peddling from a cart 30 years ago, the village priests would point out young Laval pushing the cart with his right hand, while reading a book, held in his left hand, and say "there's some one to model yourself on."

That "boy pedlar of the Auvergne" will talk with President Hoover "as an equal," to put it mildly, having for background two and one-half billions in gold, the most powerful standing army in the world, the biggest fleet of fighting airships, a united prosperous nation in which unemployment has been unknown, a land in which the farmer gets one dollar and a half for his wheat, and the worker buys bread for less than you can buy it in the United States.

We can learn a great deal from Monsieur Laval, and his country.

General Pershing, who protests against reducing the army thinks that 500,000 trained men, ready for service in 1917, would have kept us out of the Great War. He is mistaken about that. Europe would have been all the more anxious to get us in, and Europe TOOK US IN.

General Pershing adds, "Our mobile force of 30,000 wouldn't half fill Yale's football stadium."

This is true, but one single airplane, carrying two men and explosive bombs, WOULD EMPTY YALE'S STADIUM IN ABOUT A MINUTE, if the people could get out so rapidly.

And one airplane, equipped with modern poison gas, could destroy the lives of as many as could enter the Yale Stadium.

This country needs submarines out of sight to destroy ships of any nations attacking us, and in the air a fighting fleet, greater by at least 100 per cent than that of any other nation, to remind the world that to attack us would mean subsequent destruction.

The Japanese do not profess our religion, or read our Bible, to any great extent. But when they put their hand to the plow they go ahead in a straight line, not turning back to see if anybody is making faces at them.

When the League of Nations, the United States joining in, says to Japan, "Please get out of Manchuria, and stay out, leave those Chinese alone, hurry," Japan, always polite, says "Yes, certainly." "Yes" costs nothing.

But today you read of airplanes from Tokio again bombing Chinese in Manchuria. Some bombs fell near a railroad bridge, others are said to have struck some cities.

Japan says that the Chinese troops fired at her fliers. That is not improbable, although China says Japan's accusation is like that of a man, arrested for stealing and killing sheep, who told the judge, "I'll kill any sheep that bites me."

For centuries Irish fishermen and their families have lived on the wild, wind-swept islands of Inniskea, off the coast of County Mayo. You know those courageous fighters of the Atlantic if you have read Synge's beautiful and powerful play, "Riders to the Sea."

The Irish Free State, bringing all the inhabitants of lonely Inniskea back to the mainland, gives to each six acres of good land and $1000 to improve the land.

Here we should call that paternalism. The Angel Gabriel probably has another name for it.

Washington Turns Cold Eye on Laval Proposal

BISHOP FACING BIG TRIAL

Bishop James Cannon, Jr., whose arraignment in U. S. court in Washington on indictments charging him with violation of the corrupt practices act in the last national campaign, is set for next week, is shown in one of his recent posed photographs. It was made in Atlanta the day he was indicted by a federal grand jury. (International Newsreel photo.)

11 ARRESTED FOR ATTACK IN CHARLESTOWN DOCK STRIKE

CROWD BEATS NON-UNION WORKER

One Policeman Arrests Two; and Squad Rounds Up Nine Others

Police descended on a crowd of striking longshoremen in City sq., Charlestown, today and arrested 11, following an attack on a strikebreaker who was set upon and pummeled.

The trouble started when the strikebreaker, who is replacing a union checker at one of the Charlestown piers, passed a group of strikers near Chelsea and Joiner sts., while on his way to work after lunch.

According to police they crowded around him and several swung on him, blackening one eye and otherwise bruising him.

He shouted for help and was rescued from the hands of the crowd by Patrolman DeRohen, who then gave chase to several of the strikers as the crowd scattered.

TWO SEIZED IN CHASE

Several blocks away DeRohen captured two men who gave their names as Cornelius Murphy of Henley st. and Bartholomew McGowen of Summit ave. Both were charged with participating in an affray.

The strikebreaker, whose name was withheld, was escorted to work under police guard and a squad of eight officers was then ordered to round up strikers gathered in front of a restaurant, nearly opposite the police station.

Nine were taken into custody and marched across the square to the station while a big crowd

LAVAL FACES FAILURE ON SECURITY

Washington Fears Break Will Crop Out of Parley on War Debt and Gold

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service Correspondent.

Washington, Oct. 23—French and American policies in the affairs of a weary world—which have been radically divergent in recent years—were placed vis-a-vis today in the persons of President Hoover and Premier Laval.

Their conferences, beginning today, will run the gamut of international irritants, from war debts to reparations, from disarmament to the question of France's "security," from gold reserves to the matter of extending the international debt moratorium.

Out of these discussions may come much—or nothing.

Washington is hopeful for much, hopeful of a reconciliation of Franco-American views that will spell co-operation in the future.

But, in view of France's intransigent views on disarmament, "security" and reparations, there is behind this attitude of hope a very discernible air of skepticism that either the French or the American viewpoints will be materially altered by the brief three-day personal contact. The differences are held to be too deep-seated for ready solution.

NO SET PROGRAMS

Neither Premier Laval nor President Hoover would admit having a

18 TUFTS STUDENTS SEIZED ON RAMPAGE

Youths Arrested on Boxboro Road on Charge of Wrecking Fences and Signboards

Eighteen Tufts students were arrested and arraigned in Concord District Court today after an early morning reign of revelry on the highway between Boxboro and Acton.

Fences and signboards were worn down and the slumbers of farming folk were shattered as the students, marooned without funds in Boxboro as part of an initiation ceremony, followed a path of destruction back to the college, according to the charges of the police.

FEARED RAID ON FARMS

They were charged with malicious destruction of property and disturbing the peace. All pleaded not guilty and were released on their own recognizance for a hearing Oct. 27. Each of the students gave his address as Tufts College.

Police testified that the tumult created by the home-bound collegians was so great that citizens besieged the police stations in Boxboro, Acton and the Lake Walden barracks of the state police with anxious inquiries.

Some thought that a gang of hoodlums had descended on the countryside to rob and pillage the farmlands and there was a hurried consultation among the farmers of Acton to defend their property.

In the meantime State Troopers

MORROW WILLS ALL TO WIFE

Englewood, N. J., Oct. 23 (AP)—Aside from a million left to public institutions and individuals, Senator Dwight W. Morrow left his entire estate to his widow.

The will of the New Jersey senator, dated in January of 1927, left everything to Mrs. Morrow with the statement that Senator Morrow had complete confidence in her and knew that she would provide for herself and their children to the best interests of all concerned.

The will was filed for probate today. It did not estimate the amount of the Morrow estate which was generally believed to amount to several million dollars.

The Senator left $200,000 to Amherst College, his alma mater, and the same amount to Smith College, the alma mater of Mrs. Morrow and their daughters.

The $200,000 bequest to Amherst is to be added to the college's general endowment, the income to be applied to the maintenance and increase of professors' salaries.

Bequests of $25,000 each were left to Prof. Frederick J. E. Woodbridge, dean of faculty of political science, philosophy and fine arts, Columbia University; Martin Egan of New York, an associate in the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co., and Arthur S. Springer of Englewood, who has ben Senator Morrow's personal secretary for more than 16 years.

Fair, Clear Week-End for Boston Folk

Fair and clear weather is promised for the week-end by the weatherman. The threatened rainfall for this section was dissipated, due to the low pressure in the Canadian Northwest.

The humidity, 68 per cent, is 3 per cent below normal. The wind is northwest. The temperature reading at 9 o'clock was 53.

JAIL DELAYED A DAY FOR CAPONE

Chicago, Oct. 23 (AP)—Sentencing of Alphonse Capone for violating income tax laws was delayed at least one more day when Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson announced at the close of legal arguments today:

"I will dispose of this case at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning."

Announcement by the court followed long arguments on the legality of the indictments and the jury's finding. The defense again intimated the case would be taken to the U. S. Supreme Court.

As the big scarfaced gangster watched Judge Wilkerson, apprehensive lest the court interrupt at any time and pronounce sentence, Attorneys Albert Fink and Michael Ahearn pleaded for a writ in arrest of judgment—a writ which would set at naught not only the trial in which he was convicted, but also the indictment which accused Capone as an income tax evader.

Atty. Fink said he thought it "so plain" that the indictments were not specific and that the verdict, finding Capone guilty on five counts and not guilty on 18, was inconsistent, that he doubted that it would be necessary to argue the point.

Capone, dressed in a black suit with a gray stripe, arrived early and paced the corridor waiting for the courtroom to be opened. His index finger on the right hand was bandaged. He said he had "cut it."

Big Canadian Lawyer Sought in Thefts

Cornwall, Ont., Oct. 23 (INS)—George A. Stiles, K. C., a brilliant barrister and at one time mayor of Community Pillar, was being sought all over the North American continent today by police. Clients charge that he embezzled $100,000, part of funds belonging to the church of which he was formerly warden.

It was said that the money was lost in the stock market and on the races.

60-YEAR TERMS FOR KIDNAPERS

New York, Oct. 23 (AP)—Four men convicted of kidnapping Charles M. Rosenthal, youthful Wall Street broker for $30,000 ransom, were sentenced today to terms of 60 years in prison.

The kidnappers are: Marcus Blumenthal, alias Jack Markham, of New York; Albert Sileo, alias John Rocco; Theodore Adanolfi, alias Harry King, both of Newark, N. J., and Nicholas Rutigliano, manager of the Hotel Vending, 120 West 47th st.

A mulatto girl, known as Betty Green, was tried with the kidnapers but was acquitted by the jury which found the four men guilty. The girl acknowledged that she brought Rosenthal into the hands of the kidnapers but insisted that she had no knowledge of the reason why they wanted him.

The defense of the four men was an assertion that Rosenthal had arranged to have himself kidnaped so that he might obtain money secured from his mother as a ransom. This was denied by Rosenthal.

Italy's King Reported as Seriously Ill

Paris, Oct. 23 (INS)—Private advices from Rome tonight said the condition of King Victor Emanuel's health was "unsatisfactory."

It was added that the King had been taken to his country residence and the the Italian press is withholding the facts.

Laval to Rest in Lincoln's 9-Foot Bed

Washington, Oct. 22 (AP)—A huge and historic bed, made especially to fit the huge form of Abraham Lincoln, will be the resting place of Premier Laval during his day at the White House tonight.

Set up in what is known as the Lincoln suite of the Executive Mansion, the bed measures nearly nine feet in length and six feet across. Its comfort is a byword in the White House.

Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald slept on it two years ago. It has borne other notables, too.

JAPAN, CHINA IN PEACE PARLEY

Geneva, Switzerland, Oct. 23 (AP)—Dr. Alfred Sze, China's representative, informed the League of Nations Council this evening that his government accepts the resolution presented yesterday by Aristide Briand as a basis for restoring peace in Manchuria.

The Briand proposal requested the Chinese and Japanese governments to begin direct negotiations to arrange evacuation of Manchuria by Japanese troops.

It recommended also that China pledge security of Japanese lives and property in Manchuria, and suggested establishment of a permanent conciliation committee.

Kenkichi Yoshizawa told the council yesterday his government could not accept any time limit on evacuation although Briand proposed that all Japanese troops be withdrawn to the railway zone by November 16, when the council will meet again.

Today word from Tokio said the Japanese government was willing to withdraw troops from outside the railway zone within three weeks if China would agree to end anti-Japanese agitation.

'WHOOPEE' GIRL TRIES SUICIDE

A girl's attempt at suicide in a Lynn police cell, the escape of her male companion, later recaptured, and the arrest of another couple ended an automobile "whoopee" party in Lynn early today, according to Lynn police.

Arrested in a parked automobile on North Common st., Lynn, Helen Moran, 18, of Brownville av., Lynn, was later found with her face immersed in water that filled the wash basin of her cell.

She was taken to Lynn Hospital, but recovered en route, and after examination by a staff doctor was returned to her cell.

FUGITIVE CAUGHT

In the excitement, Leon J. Mercier, 28, of Piedmont st., Worcester, vaulted the prisoner's cage, where he had been held to be booked, and ran from the station.

Mercier was free for nearly an hour, while Motorcycle Officer Arthur MacDonald cruised the streets in a hunt for him.

MacDonald finally sighted the fugitive engaging a taxi five blocks away from the station and rearrested him, then booked him on charges of drunkenness, driving under the influence of liquor, operating without a license and without registration.

THREE RELEASED

Walter L. Smith, 29, of North st., Salem, was booked for drunkenness, as was Miss Moran. The other girl, said by police to be a juvenile of 16 years, was taken home after questioning. Because of her age, police withheld her name.

16 PARADING YOUNG REDS SEIZED IN MILL STRIKE

FREED AFTER POLICE TAKE THEIR NAMES

Relief Plans Are Speeded Up as Peace Hopes Fade; Home of a Loyal Worker Stoned

Lawrence, Oct. 23—Sixteen boys, sons of radical strikers, were taken into custody with their young woman leader by police today as they caused a disturbance in the vicinity of Elm and Oak sts., near the Common.

Police released them after taking down their names, the names of their parents, the schools they attend and information regarding the Young Pioneer movement of the Communist party, of which all the boys claimed to be members.

They were marching through the streets at daybreak, singing, shouting, beating on pans and throwing stones, according to police, and when questioned said they were out to awaken the strikers to go on the picket lines.

PICKETS DECREASE

It was revealed that the young Communist movement is being given considerable attention by the federal immigration authorities. A number of children have been questioned in school. They are said to have admitted attending "Red" schools in summer.

The boys taken to the police station today ranged from eight to seventeen years old. Police yesterday dispersed about 25 boys and girls as they marched in a picket line.

With Governor Ely trying hard to put an end to the wage cut dispute and negotiations quietly under way between the Lawrence citizens' committee and both factions, the picket lines dwindled today from several thousand at each mill to only a few hundred.

Another reason for the decreased number of pickets was the announcement of most of the mill owners that they were abandoning their attempt to operate with skeleton crews.

PEACE HOPES FADE.

Despite efforts of the Governor and the State board of arbitration and conciliation, nobody closely concerned with the situation would hold out any hope for an early settlement, and the question of aid for the strikers and their families is becoming a serious one.

Alderman David J. Burke, director of the department of health and charities, plans a conference with Robert J. Watt, president of the Central Labor Union, about this matter. The radical organization, the National Textile Workers' Union, announced that contributions were being accepted and that plans were being shaped for a relief depot on Union st.

Clifford Mackie of Ashland st., Newburyport, who works at the Duck Mill, where no wage cut was made, reported to the police today that during the night his automobile, parked near the mill, was damaged. The windows and headlights were smashed and the number plates taken away.

HOME IS STONED

According to a complaint by William Morey of Willow st., who works in the mending room at the Arlington Mill, strikers followed him home last night and smashed the windows of his house with stones.

Boston & Maine officials complained that girl students who take an early morning train from Lawrence for Boston have been molested, apparently in the belief that they were mill workers or office employes going to work in the Shawsheen Mills at Andover. Shawsheen workers take the same train.

POPE OPPOSES SPANISH ENVOY

Vatican City, Oct. 23 (AP)—Vatican officials said today it was unlikely that Luis Zulueta would be acceptable as the Spanish ambassador to the Holy See and that moreover under present conditions in Spain it is "impossible" to consider the nomination of anyone as the Spanish ambassador.

There has been such marked hostility to the church in Spain, it was said, that "it is even uncertain whether diplomatic relations will be maintained at all."

A prediction that Luis Zulueta would be acceptable as ambassador to the Holy See was attributed yesterday to high Catholic circles in Madrid. It was said the Vatican was inclined to believe discussion of its differences with the Spanish government could be continued through the maintenance of diplomatic representation.

STORK TO VISIT STILLMANS

Bud and Lena Stillman are anticipating a blessed event.

It was revealed today that the young couple, the son of wealth and his backwoods bride, are expecting a visit from the stork soon and that Mrs. Stillman is making plans to leave their cozy Brookline home to enter the hospital in a short time.

Bud is James Stillman, son of James A. Stillman, millionaire New York banker, and Mrs. Anne U. Stillman, now Mrs. Fowler McCormick. His parents were the central figures in bitter divorce actions which rocked New York society and commanded international notice.

Lena, before her marriage to young Bud, was Lena Wilson, of Grand Anse, Que., and was personal maid of Bud's mother while the latter vacationed in the North Woods. The marriage of Bud and the little Grand Anse milkmaid drew as much attention as Bud's parents' difficulties.

THE REST OF THE NEWS

ON HUNGER STRIKE

80 Quarts of Beer Spilled in Chelsea

Eighty quart bottles of beer were thrown from a speeding auto into Williams st., Chelsea, early today by men who evidently thought they were being pursued. Sixty bottles were broken on the asphalt paving, but the other 20 remained intact.

Patrolman James McAleenan heard the crash of breaking glass and saw the auto vanish.

The 20 quarts of salvaged beer was ordered destroyed.

Farmhand Identified as Boston Resident

The farmhand who dropped dead in Exeter, Me., from a heart attack Wednesday night, was identified by Boston police today as William H. Doherty, of 24 Faxon st., Boston.

Bangor police appealed to police here to help in identifying the man, who was known as William H. Donovan. Investigation revealed him to be the son of Mrs. Margaret Doherty, of Faxon st.

CLUE TO COP'S SHOOTER FOUND ON A NAPKIN

Police Say Fugitive Is "Baby-Faced Killer" Type; Posse on Trail in the Woods

Framingham, Oct. 23—A "tip" believed to have named a definite suspect in the shooting of Patrolman John L. Regan sent State Detective Edward Sherlock and Police Chief William Holbrook out of the state police barracks on a mission of secrecy this afternoon.

Before leaving they communicated with State Detective Joseph O'Neill at Boston and asked him to speed here and await their return.

A short time before they disclosed that fingerprints of value had been found in the home of Wallace Adams, where Regan was shot.

"BABY-FACED KILLER"

Police described the gunman as of the "baby-face" type with a penchant for table manners that caused him to use a napkin during a bolted, stolen meal in the Adams home before Regan surprised him.

State troopers, police and volunteer citizens armed with shotguns split into several groups to visit abandoned camps and shacks on Nobscot Hill, about Dudley pond in Wayland and Sudbury and in the woods of Saxonville.

ARMED AND DESPERATE

The policeman's assailant is known to be armed with a revolver, which he reloaded after shooting Regan, and a knife, which he used to gain access to the home of Adams.

Meanwhile, Charles A. Porter, chairman of selectmen, discussed with other members of the board the advisability of offering a reward probably $500, for the gunman's capture, and similar discussion was underway among members of the Rotary and Kiawanis clubs.

Regan is one of the most popular members of the local police department, as evidenced by the fact that 1500 telephone calls inquiring about his condition were received at Framingham Union Hospital between 7 p. m. yesterday and 7 a. m. today.

FIGHTS FOR LIFE

To all inquirers, the answer was the same, "He has an even chance for recovery."

The chance for recovery was based upon a slightly improved condition over yesterday morning. Two of the five bullet wounds—those in the abdomen—are serious.

Regan remained conscious and aware of the seriousness of his plight and asked that his wife be allowed to bring his three children to the hospital so he might see them.

Hospital authorities granted permission for him to see one of the children and the oldest will be taken to his bedside later today.

Regan said he would know his assailant if he saw him and any suspects taken in custody will be taken to the hospital.

SUSPECTS ELIMINATED

State police broadcast a description of the wanted man as follows: Twenty-five years old, 150 pounds, five feet eight inches tall, light hair and complexion, blue eyes, light-colored jacket or sweater and light brown snap brim hat.

The Waltham home of a youth under suspicion was watched through the night, but without result. There is no definite evidence to connect this youth with the crime.

Police are convinced that the gunman is familiar with the local woods and woods paths and that he had been a fugitive, living in some woods shack and perhaps responsible for several recent burglaries in the community.

Four men arrested as vagrants yesterday when 100 police and citizens, directed by airplane, searched the woods, were eliminated from the case.

John P. Regan and Denat La Casse of the Lake Walden barracks rushed to the Acton highway in answer to the alarm and succeeded in rounding up the entire group with the help of aroused farmers.

Farm trucks and private automobiles were called into service to take the 18 to the Concord police jail, neither the Boxboro nor Acton lockups being large enough to accommodate them.

At 1:30 a. m. the cavalcade reached the Concord station, where the students were booked. They remained in the station until court was opened. Few managed to get any sleep and they presented a haggard appearance when the case was called.

They told the police that they had been brought from the college to Boxboro about midnight at the climax of their initiation into a Tufts fraternity. As part of the ceremony they were left without funds in the town of Boxboro to make their way as well as they could back to the campus.

DEAN OPENS PROBE

After their court arraignment Dean Frank Wren was notified. The news of their arrests was entirely unexpected by the dean and he declared that he would begin an investigation at once.

"I heard nothing about this at the opening of classes today," said the dean. "Of course, there will be an investigation and I shall talk to each of the men involved. Hazing is not permitted at the college, but there is no rule against initiations.

"Until I learn the facts in the case I shall withhold comment."

FEAR NEW TROUBLE

Police said that trouble was feared if strikebreakers tried to approach the restaurant and had to pass the group of union longshoremen.

In spite of a new hitch in peace negotiations, Frederick M. Knight, agent for the State Board of Conciliation and Arbitration, predicted today that union longshoremen would be back to work next Monday.

Union leaders, however, have rejected proposals prepared by the employers and demand that the entire document be revised before peace negotiations may even be started.

It was generally agreed yesterday that conditions and wages had been practically settled upon, with the exception of the sling load weight, but union men charged today that the new provisions would wipe out overtime pay for night work.

A meeting planned for today was postponed when union leaders announced they wanted time to draft counter proposals.

TRIO GUILTY IN GRAFT CASE AT LAWRENCE

Alderman McCarthy Must Stand Trial on Two More Indictments

Lawrence, Oct. 23—Convicted last night of misdemeanors in his conduct of the engineering commissioner's office, Alderman John W. McCarthy today faces two further indictments charging larceny and conspiracy.

McCarthy and two street department employes, John F. Sullivan, carpenter, and Joseph M. Rinehart, clerk, were found guilty after two hours' deliberation by an Essex County jury here on 10 counts of soliciting and accepting contributions for political purposes. McCarthy also was found guilty of nine counts of accepting bonuses.

FREE ON BAIL

The trio were all found not guilty on indictments alleging felonies, which included 10 counts of soliciting and accepting bonuses against McCarthy. On the felony indictments all three were found not guilty on 10 counts of conspiracy to accept a bonus and 10 counts of conspiracy to accept a bribe.

Following the verdicts, Dist.-Atty. Hugh A. Cregg stated he had not decided when he would move for sentence. The three defendants are out on bail today.

MORE FOR McCARTHY

McCarthy, however, faces further indictments. Two are pending against him and Joseph J. Galvin of the Trimount Oil Company, of Everett, charging conspiracy to steal from the city and larceny. The indictments allege that the city was victimized in a deal involving the purchase of oil and asphalt from Galvin.

Date for trial of these indictments has not yet been set. Dist.-Atty. Cregg agreed to try these indictments separately following a motion by Galvin's attorney.

The United States naturalization authorities, as well as the immigration bureau, are engaged in a campaign against radicals involved in the local strike, it was revealed today.

While the immigration authorities are seeking to deport radical aliens, the naturalization bureau will try to have the citizenship of several "reds" revoked by the federal court at Boston.

FACES OUSTING

This was revealed when Henry Nicholls, naturalization director for this district, said he was launching an attempt to have the citizenship of Rubin Byzer revoked on the ground, it is understood, that Pyzer was already a member of an organization advocating the overthrow of the Government of the United States when he took the oath of citizenship.

If his citizenship is cancelled he will then be turned over to the immigration authorities for deportation. Pyzer is 25 and a resident of Malden. He was born in Poland. In district court today he was fined $30 for a disturbance on October 7.

N. ENGLAND TO LEAD NATION

New England will lead this country out of the depression this time just as she did in 1921, Robert E. Huse, editorial executive of the New England Council, declared at the Boston University school of education before more than 200 leaders of local industry and commerce.

In his lecture on "New England and the Depression," Mr. Huse asserted yesterday that diversification of industry gives this section the strength which the rest of the country lacks.

"Studies indicate that in the next 20 years the population of New England ought to increase to 10 million people. Manufacturing will still be the economic activity of first importance to New Englanders, and industry as a whole will employ 100,000 more than it does today."

Council Upheld in Rejecting Low Bids

The Governor's Council may ignore the low bid of an out-state company and award contracts to local concerns, although their bids may be higher, Judge Wait of the Supreme Court ruled in effect today.

Judge Wait sustained a demurrer of the council to a petition for a mandamus brought by Arute Bros., of New Britian, Ct., low bidders, asking the court to compel the council to approve or disapprove a contract for contruction of highway in Randolph.

PEOPLE Who Interest You and What They Are Doing

Former Russian Princess Seeks U. S. Citizenship

Detroit, Oct. 23—Another member of the former ruling Russian aristocratic class renounced her title and applied for American citizenship yesterday at the U. S. Naturalization Bureau.

Mrs. Rybakoff

She is Mrs. Tamara Anto-Lievna Rybakoff, a princess of one of Russia's oldest noble families, and the widow of a colonel who died fighting the Bolsheviki in 1918. She is now the wife of Nicholas Rybakoff, also a Russian refugee, naturalized a year ago.

Mrs. Rybakoff's 13-year-old son, Igor Prince Kropatkin, born in Russian in 1918, must wait until he becomes of age before he can renounce his title and attain citizenship, officials said.

Charlie Chaplin in Sidewalk Reunion With Old Pal

London, Oct. 23—A chance meeting with one of his old boyhood friends brought Charlie Chaplin a good deal of joy and cost him some money here yesterday.

Charlie Chaplin

Charlie was strolling through Lambeth. He passed a sidewalk artist. With a large grin on his face for the crayon drawing of himself, he strode over.

"Hello, Dando!" cried Charlie.

"Hello, Charlie!" cried Dando.

Charlie and Dando were members of Fred Karno's humming birds, in which Chaplin got his start. A piece of currency passed between them "just to celebrate the reunion."

Mrs. Debie Stanford to Make 5000-Mile Flight

Guelph, Ont., Oct. 23—Long distance flights belong not alone to the aviators, if Mrs. Debie Stanford, well-known aviatrix, has anything to say about it.

Mrs. Stanford

Mrs. Stanford has announced she will make a 5000-mile flight from New York to an unannounced point somewhere south of the equator. She will be accompanied by Mrs. Ruth Stewart, a transport pilot. The flight is expected to take five and a half days, includnig stopovers at various points along the way. Mrs. Stanford left for St. Louis to make the final arrangements.

United States Behind in Sculpture, Says Epstein

London, Oct. 23—The United States has an entirely new school of architecture but it has failed to create a corresponding school of sculpture, according to Jacob Epstein, sculptor and veteran of many recent art controversies.

Jacob Epstein

"There is no real American school of sculpture," says Epstein in "The Sculptor Speaks," a book soon to be published here.

"They have created an entirely new school of architecture, massive and impersonal, which would completely dwarf the ordinary sculpture figure. The new American architecture calls for a new school of sculpture."

Fire Lines Halt Rioting Students

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 23—The fire and police departments were rushed into action here last night to stop a battle between 150 students of Johns Hopkins University of Baltimore, and a much larger delegation of students of St. John's College of Annapolis.

When quiet finally prevailed 13 Hopkins students were in jail along with five St. John's students, including the president of the senior class.

The domestic help problem is solved by taking a kitchenette apartment and the best are advertised daily in the For Rent columns.

'SAIL INTO JOB' OF REVIVING U. S. BUSINESS, SAYS SCHWAB

A GREETING TO AMERICA

Josette Laval, 19-year-old daughter of Premier Laval, was much impressed by Washington when she arrived there with her father. She's pretty—large brown eyes, brown hair in a long bob, sun-tanned complexion, straight white teeth and a charming smile. (International Newsreel photo.)

LOVE? AH, WELL! SIGHS JOSETTE

Washington, Oct. 23 (AP)—In the opinion of Mlle. Josette Laval, 19, the answer to the moot question about woman's combining a career and matrimony "depends upon the woman—and the vareer."

The daughter of the French Premier gave her observation in a formal press conference today, after facing the glare of news moving picture camera lights.

a career?" she was asked.

Flashing a smile, she made her answer.

"Could you do it?" somebody persisted.

"I don't know," she replied.

"Would you then?"

"I don't know," Josette responded, hastening to add, "but many women in France do."

Josette confided minor details about herself—such as that she sometimes asks more questions about politics than her father will answer—but parried queries about her future and her opinion of American men.

She is partial to bleu because it is her father's favorite color, she revealed, smilingly smoothing a frock of that hue. It was closely fitted, dark silk, with a dainty white lace collar and a flaring skirt.

When she went shopping she put on a tiny white hat, and long white gloves.

Debutante Washington, meanwhile, was speculating on what had happened to the companionship it had understood to be very close between Josette and Mlle. Jacqueline Guimier who was expected here with Josette but has not showed up.

It was understood in embassy circles that Jacqueline remained in New York, after she and Josette saw little of each other in crossing the Atlantic.

STATE'S FIRST 'AIR OFFICER'

Appointment of the first "air officer" of Massachusetts was announced today with the promotion of Maj. Louis E. Boutwell, commanding officer of the 26th Division Aviation Unit, to lieutenant-colonel.

Col. Boutwell now becomes air officer of the division and also of the Commonwealth, according to Adjt.-Gen. John H. Agnew.

The appointment was made by Major-General Erland F. Fish, commanding general of the 26th Division. As division and state air officer, Col. Boutwell's duties will be to facilitate closer co-operation between the 26th aviation unit and the other units of the divisioin and the state.

Huge Exports by U. S. to China Is Forecast

Washington, Oct. 23 (INS)—A proposal for a ten-year industrial plan that would require $11,000,000,000 worth of machinery is under consideration by the Chinese government, John J. Ehrhardt, U. S. trade commissioner in Shanghai notified the Department of Commerce today.

Department officials saw in it enormous export of machinery and other materials from the United States.

NAVY YARD PLEA BALKED

Adoption of a resolution opposing the abandonment of the Charlestown Navy Yard was balked last night at the meeting of the Somerville board of aldermen by Alderman Louis C. Gobron.

A communication from Mayor John J. Murphy was read, recommending the adoption of such a resolution. The resolution was drawn up and presented by Pres. James F. Stynes and Vice-Pres. Leo B. Havican. When it came to the voting, Alderman Gobron entered a charter objection, preventing the adoption.

The communication of Mayor Murphy said in part:

"About one-seventh of the employes of the yard live in Somerville, and it would be a very serious injury to this city if they were to be thrown out of employment at this time."

JOHN H. CRONIN DIES AT 81

John H. Cronin, father of John F. Cronin, clerk of the supreme judicial court, died at his home, 72 Wachusett st., Jamaica Plain, yesterday.

He was born in Killarney, Ireland, 81 years ago.

He retired from the monument business about 15 years ago. He was active in the affairs of St. Thomas Church and was sexton from 1910 to the time of his death. For 35 years he was president of the St. Vincent De Paul Society and was active in the Massachusetts Catholic Order of Foresters.

He is survived by three sons and two daughters, John F. Cronin of the supreme court, Charles H. Cronin and Thomas A. Cronin, both lawyers; the Misses Lillian E. Cronin and Ellen A. Cronin, Boston school teachers..

Trunk Victims Slain in Rivalry Over Rich 'Playboy'

HATRED BORN OF LOVE TANGLES IS REVEALED

Three Women Clashed for Favor in the Eyes of Phoenix "Social Lions"

Phoenix, Ariz., Oct. 23—New disclosures here since the discovery of the double "trunk murder," cast additional light today on the amazing lives of three young women, two the victims of a killer and the third, the accused slayer.

Hatred, springing from a love intrigue in a small "social circle" in a hospital, was added today to the motives of personal jealousy as a possible explanation of the alleged murder by Ruth Judd of her erstwhile closest friends, Agnes Leroi, a nurse, and Hedwig Samuelson, a health-seeking school teacher.

A good-looking doctor came to the clinic to work. He set all the nurses' hearts fluttering.

RIVALS IN LOVE.

It was inevitable that Agnes Leroi of the warm heart, the flashing smile and the mischievous eyes should "fall for" the new medico.

Ruth Judd had no less ambitious a heart behind her cooler manner and she envied the interest which colorful Agnes excited in the new doctor.

There had already been an open break between Ruth and Agnes over a rich middle aged boy friend. Once when Miss Leroi was on the Coast Ruth was ace high with the playboy. Hearing of this Agnes slipped back into town ahead of her schedule and quickly regained her lost ground, friends said.

It was a typical rivalry for the social lions of the little coterie in which the three women had their lives and flirtations.

BOTH HELD PARTIES

On the fatal night before the murders Agnes gave a party and invited the good looking doctor. That same night Ruth gave a party and invited the rich businessman.

Thus, to the very end, the rivalry between these two women continued to grow into a bitter personal hatred.

Miss Samuelson liked men, too, but she couldn't "go after 'em" like the others, it is said. She was fragile, and cuddly like a kitten. She said and did cute things that men liked.

Scores of letters from men showed her personal power over them. A rich Alaskan who owned a chain of theaters and newspapers and was a power in politics, raised $1,000—some said $2,500—to send her to Arizona for her health.

A man prominent in the East met her on a steamer and for months afterward wrote her, talked about sending her money, and gave her books and other gifts.

It was significant that one of her love conquests lasted after the boy married another girl and became a father.

RUTH ONLY A "FLASH."

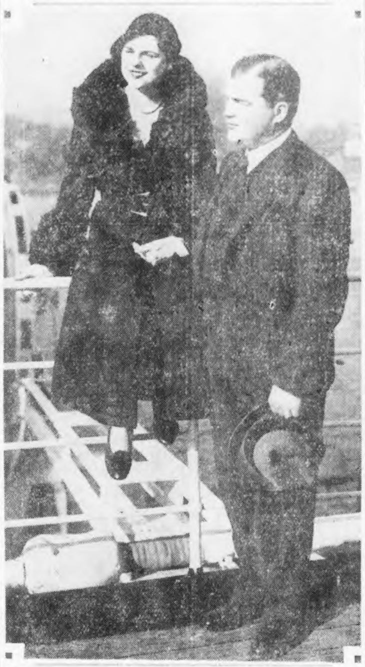
Ruth Judd's allure was described, however, as a "flash in the pan." Her friendships were intense but short-lived.

She was able, friends said, to "put herself over big" for a time but she never for long held a friend or a job.

Los Angeles police today planned to requestion Burton M. McKinnell, brother of Mrs. Judd, as the result of information given by a new witness in the case, Russell B. Howe, a fellow student of McKinnell's at the University of Southern California.

Howe says McKinnell came to him the night the crime was discovered, told him his sister was in trouble and tried to borrow money to get her out of town. Police believe McKinnell now knows where his sister is and plan to break down his silence under a new grilling.

NAUTILUS CHIEF RETURNS



Commander Sloan Danenhower, of the submarine Nautilus which recently returned to civilization from its under-ice dash through the Arctic to within a few hundred miles of the North Pole, returned to New York yesterday on the Ile de France. He was greeted by his daughter. (International Newsreel photo.)

NEW IDEA FOR ARCTIC SUBS

New York, Oct. 23 (US)—Feasibility of an ice submarine with hydraulic propulsion, dispensing with propellers, was discussed by Commander Sloan Danenhower, captain of Sir Hubert Wilkins' submarine Nautilus, on his return here on the French liner Ile de France.

Comdr. Danenhower said it was his intention, after remaining a little while in New York, to return to France and make a better investigation of hydraulic propulsion, with a view to its use in another attempt to reach the North Pole under ice. He said:

"Instead of a propeller, a tunnel runs under the stern or bow of the boat, and the forward action is caused by a turbine pushing out the water. The principle has been applied with some success on small surface craft. I consider it worthy of further investigation."

Comdr. Danenhower endorsed the opinion of Sir Hubert and other members of the Nautilus party that the voyage under the Pole is possible with a specially-built submarine. But he did not deplore the Nautilus' venture. He said:

"We went to school. Without the lessons we learned on that voyage it would not be feasible to design another boat. Even as it was, we proved one important point—the possibility of carrying scientific instruments under water and using them efficaciously.

EDISON TRIBUTE IN THE PILOT

Splendid tribute to Thomas A. Edison is given in the current issue of The Pilot, official Catholic organ which says editorially that "in the passing from earth of Thomas A. Edison humanity loses a benefactor who conferred extraordinary benefits on the race."

The editorial is entitled "The World Is His Debtor," and reads in part:

"If Thomas Edison were a superb inventive genius and nothing more, his passing would deserve international notice. But he was also a sincere unaffected friend of humanity, therefore, his death has evoked a consciousness of universal personal loss. There is evident on all sides a sense of regret which cannot be wholly explained as gratitude for the fruits of his genius.

"The loss we all feel in the passing from life of Thomas A. Edison is in part at least a spontaneous tribute to a kindly upright lover of his fellow mortals—it is a tribute to the man Edison."

50 Hazed Students All Night on Island

Detroit, Oct. 23 (INS)—Suffering from exposure all night stay on Peeme Island in Lake Erie, 50 "hazed" freshmen of the City College of Detroit, were rescued today by river police.

'STOP WASTING,' STEEL LEADERS ARE TOLD

Institute President Warns of Overbuilding Plants; Regrets Wage Cuts

New York, Oct. 23 (INS)—Declaring that the financial world was straightening itself out and that the house of steel was now in order, Charles M. Schwab, veteran soldier of the steel industry, today sounded a trumpet call to the members of the American Iron and Steel Institute to "sail into the job" of improving economic conditions.

Schwab, president of the Institute and chairman of the board of directors of the Bethlehem Steel Corp., asserted that "industry hes gotten its second wind" and that "economy and efficiency" would lead business out of the depression, adding:

"Fear has been lessened. There will be no collapse. The sources of credit have been mobilized and we shall pull through."

WHAT HE RECOMMENDS

Schwab listed the necessary steps for improving conditions as follows:

"A better financial structure which is now under way.

"A liquidation of extravagances in business, including prices, which has already taken place in most lines to an abnormal extent.

"A reduction in the cost of government, which is borne by industry and the people.

"A vigorous, enterprising attitude on the part of industry."

He registered opposition to further supervision of private business by the government, to the overbuilding of the steel industry and to the dole.

He pledged the steel industry as supporting any movement for permanent peace despite the business which might accrue from building navy vessels and armament.

REGRETS WAGE CUTS

Schwab termed the indifference to governmental costs one of the worst features of American life.

"I refer particularly to our local governments, state, city and county," he said. "Here we find colossal wastes which are a dead weight on business and the public."

He laid only partial blame for this on the politician.

"There is the waste of racketeering, the waste of countless bureaus, the extravagance in administration," he said.

He expressed the regret of the steel industry for the necessity of recent wage cutting.

"We held to the old wage rates as long as our balance sheets would permit," he said. "But with the liquidation of prices and values in all directions it was necessary to yield to economic law."

URGES EXPANSION CURB

He recommended a moratorium on all new building of plants "until such time as the need for added capacity is clearly apparent."

"The overbuilding of our industry is as nonsensical as the competition in armaments," he said. "The capacity of the steel industry, including uncompleted works, is now 68,000,000 tons of ingots annually.

"Our rate of production this year is 37 per cent of capacity. Even in 1929, with its output of 54,000,000 tons, we were using 80 per cent of the present capacity and that in process of construction."

Urging the industry to continue sales campaigns, advertising and improvement of production methods, Schwab declared:

"I believe in the continued growth of our country, the essential strength of the steel industry, and the ability of our nation to master the problems of a complicated age.

"If this be optimism, make the most of it."

BETTER ASK YOUR WIFE

Here's the Rev. Daniel Sands of Quincy, Ill., with a message for foot-loose husbands, but never a thought for the wives. In effect he says marital bliss can be made more blissful if the husbands were allowed to make outside dates with other women. He offered the idea to the convention of the American Unitarian Association in Philadelphia. (International Newsreel photo.)

BOSTON FAMILY GETS FORTUNE

A Beacon Hill widow and her four children are to share in a million dollar estate, it was learned today.

She is Mrs. Julia P. Johnson, widow of Reginald M. Johnson of 97 Mt. Vernon st., who received word that the estate left by her mother, Mrs. Antoinette L. Burden, late of Bedford Hills, N. Y., has just been settled.

Mrs. Johnson is to get $124,174, and each of her children $186,216, the share of the youngest, Pierpont Johnson, William College student, to be held in trust until he reaches the age of 30.

The other children are Mrs. George Fisher of New York; Mrs. Edward Johnson of Milton, who married a man by the same name, and Reginald F. Johnson, Harvard graduate, now taking a course in architecture at Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Mrs. Burden died a year ago, according to Atty. Albert W. Rice, counsel for Mrs. Johnson.

LINDBERGH OFF FOR NEW YORK

Rock Springs, Wyo., Oct. 23 (AP)—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh took [illegible] from the Rock Springs air[illegible] 6:12 a. m., Mountain Standar[illegible] time, today on another leg of their trip from Victoria, B. C., with hopes of reaching New York tonight. There was a light wind, but skies were clear.

Both expressed eagerness to see their baby son, Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., who is just 15 months old. Aside from the death of Senator Morrow, her father, the boy was uppermost in the mind of Mrs. Lindbergh.

"When we left home," the mother said, "he was just starting to walk and stand on his feet."

That was late last July, just before the couple started from New York for an aerial vacation tour of the Orient that was halted by news of the death of Senator Morrow.

'OUTRAGE'! 'YES' AND ALSO 'NO'

It was an outrage, her attorney declared today in Dorchester court, that Mrs. Agnes C. Coleman, 25, of Harrow st., Sharon, should have been booked for speeding, and operating without license or registration, but Judge Michael H. Sullivan ruled that no outrage existed anywhere.

The outrage was hardly discernible, said the judge, when Mrs. Coleman had continued driving an automobile after her license had expired in January 1930, and she had not renewed it.

"I am surprised that this woman should ask for special favor," said Judge Sullivan in answering the "outrage" assertion of her brother-in-law and counsel, William T. McCarthy, former assistant district attorney of Middlesex county.

Judge Sullivan fined her $5 on each of the three counts, and when she appealed held her for Superior Court in her own recognizance.

PARROT GIVES CLUE TO RUM

A parrot is responsible for the jailing of Mrs. Beulah Terry of Harrison ave., who was sent to the Charles Street Jail for six months and fined $300 for keeping and exposing liquor.

A lodger of Mrs. Terry, George Galloway, pleaded guilty and was fined $50.

The police went to Mrs. Terry's lodging house and found only a pint of liquor, hardly enough on which to base a charge of keeping and exposing.

The police were about to depart when the parrot began to scream and the officers' attention was directed to a porcelain knob. It seemed larger than was necessary to hang pictures upon and one officer gave it a pull. A hole appeared in the wall and a tube leading to a tank was discovered. Moving the bird the officers found a small spigot and then a six-gallon tank.

STATE TROOPERS, SUMMONED BY RADIO TO FRAMINGHAM, ARE SHOWN ENTERING WOODS TO PUSH SEARCH FOR BURGLAR WHO SHOT PATROLMAN JOHN L. REGAN

FOUR MEDFORD HOMES ROBBED

Three "bedrom bandits" were reported in four Medford housebreaks early today among families that entertained company last night.

From the home of William H. Sharp, 82 Magoun ave., the thieves took a pocketbook containing $1.16. Sharp gave chase without success.

At the home of Thomas K. Gill, 112 Fountain st., the trio entered a bedroom and escaped with two pocketbooks, one the property of a guest, Emily Sloane, of Pilgrim rd., Somerville.

More than $150 worth of jewelry was taken from the bedroom of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Pike at 117 Dudley st.

Today Richard F. Anderson awoke in his room at 92 Otis st. minus $190 worth of jewelry.

JUDGE DEPORTS RHODE ISLAND ALIENS

Providence, R. I., Oct. 23 (AP)—Two men, convicted on second degree murder charges here six years ago, were ordered deported to Italy today by Judge Letts in U. S. District Court after the Rhode Island parole board had terminated the sentences of the pair provided they would submit to deportation.

The men, Bonaventura Veltri, formerly of Natick, and Giovanna Termini of South Auburn, were convicted on June 15, 1925, of second degree murder in connection with the beating to death of Guiseppe Sacco during a crap game at an Auburn residence. Both were sentenced to 12½ years in state prison.

Several other undesirable aliens also were deported today on the Fabre steamer Sinai, among them being Giuseppe Vendetti, of Providence, who came over the Canadian border in September, 1925, without having been lawfully admitted to this country.

Starving Chinese Are Saved Off Florida

Miami, Fla., Oct. 23 (INS)—Starving on an uninhabited island thirty-five miles south of the town of Everglades, ten Chinese aliens were rescued by fishermen and brought here today.

The aliens said they were abandoned by smugglers after paying $1000 each to be brought from Cuba. They had been without food or water for four days.

72-Year-Old Worker Falls Off Signal Pole

Frank Skillen, 72, and married, an employee of the B. & A., living at 12 Garfield st., Medford, was seriously injured today, when he fell from a signal pole near Mystic pier, Charlestown.

At the Massachusetts General hospital, he was found to have several broken ribs, and a possible fracture of the left leg.

Better and Cheaper Homes Are Planned

Washington, Oct. 23 (AP)—The President's committee of architects thinks the American workingman lives in seriously defective houses.

Plans for more comfortable, better looking and better built homes for the same or less money than at present will be presented to the President's conference on home building and ownership here December 2.

Boy, 3, Killed in Front of His Home

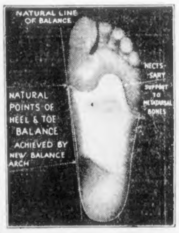
SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT
for
ALL FOOT SUFFERERS

For years the C. F. Hovey Company has never featured an arch supporter or appliance of any kind. But NOW it offers with its endorsement the

NEW BALANCE ARCH

For those who find walking painful—for those with fallen arches, callouses, swollen ankles, pains in the feet, legs or back—this new, totally different arch supporter will give relief.



NATURAL LINE OF BALANCE
NECESSARY SUPPORT TO METATARSAL BONES
NATURAL POINTS OF HEEL & TOE BALANCE ACHIEVED BY NEW BALANCE ARCH

C. F. Hovey Company recommends the New Balance Arch because it is built upon sound scientific principles of foot correction.

NO METAL

It is soft, flexible, and featherweight. It contains NO METAL PLATES OR SPRINGS OR HARD LEATHER PADS.

It is not only a soft cushion, but it is built to assist in giving permanent relief. It repositions the foot—gives a new balance to the entire body.

EXAMINATION

Without Charge This Week

Two foot-correction experts will take impressions of your feet without charge. They will show you the causes of your foot troubles—tell and show you how the NEW BALANCE ARCH will relieve your foot troubles—and assist in making a permanent cure.

LAVAL WANTS TOO MUCH, CAPITAL VIEW

definite program today.

Laval merely said he was here as the guest of the American government to discuss world problems.

"We expect all of them to be discussed and some of them settled," he said.

Administration spokesmen simply said the discussions would be of a very informal nature. In this Laval concurred. He described the meeting with Mr. Hoover as "a tete-a-tete."

It was made very evident, however, that the thought uppermost in the French premier's mind is to win the United States to the old idea of entering into a "security pact," either through the agency originally proposed by Woodrow Wilson, or by implementing the Kellogg-Briand pact for the outlawry of war.

WHAT FRANCE OFFERS

This could be accomplished by the device known as a "consultative pact," in which the signatory nations would agree to consult among themselves to determine the aggressor in the event of war.

Given such a guarantee, the French are prepared to make material concessions in the way of disarmament and reparations. Without it, there is believed to be scant chance that France will concede anything in these matters.

Senate leaders have made it clear to President Hoover, however, that any such pact is foredoomed to rejection. Ten years ago the Senate Foreign Affairs Committee rejected the security pact to which President Wilson agreed at Versailles without even the formality of a vote. More recently, the Senate has declined to even consider "putting teeth" into the Kellogg-Briand pact.

Upon that point Senate opinion is considered adamant, a fact of which President Hoover is fully cognizant. He had a two-hour conference with Senator Borah (R.) Idaho, just prior to the arrival of the French premier.

There remains then as the most promising aspects of the Hoover-Laval conferences an agreement on continuing the German debt moratorium beyond next June, and an agreement restricting and regulating the flow of gold between France and the United States.

ATTACK ON DOLLAR

As regards the extension of the moratorium, the institution of which caused resentment in France, there is a feeling that this will have to be done anyway, whether Laval agrees to it in Washington or not. Opinion is virtually unanimous that Germany cannot resume reparations payments next June.

And no one thinks that if Germany does not resume her payments to the Allies they will resume their payments to the United States. Thus an extension of one, two or three years is regarded as inevitable, irrespective of the conversations here.

The gold issue is more current and concerns only the United States and France, which between them possess aproximately 75 per cent of the world's supply. In recent weeks Europe, particularly France, has withdrawn some $600,000,000 of the precious metal from New York, which has been interpreted and criticized in some quarters as "an attack on the dollar." The withdrawal has made no appreciable dent in the American supply, but if long continued it might cause some embarrassment.

First on Laval's program today was the visit to the tomb of the Unknown Soldier. Next were formal calls on Vice-President Curtis and Chief Justice Hughes.

HONORS WAR'S HERO

He placed a wreath on the Unknown's tomb and stood with bowed head for several moments.

The wreath, of red roses, white chrysanthemums, oak leaves and ferns, bore an inscription in French "to the Unknown American Soldier from the President of the Council of Ministers of France."

His own national anthem, the "Marseillaise," played by an army band, awoke deep echoes from the tree-dotted hillside, as the premier, accompanied by Ambassador Claudel, Warren D. Robbins of the State Department and Brig.-Gen. E. T. Collins stepped down the broad marble steps leading from the amphitheater to the tomb.

The Premier removed his hat and stood rigidly at attention. An infantry contingent presented arms as he advanced to the tomb.

"Magnificent," he exclaimed, barely audible, as he surveyed the amphitheater and the tomb.

Obviously moved, he otherwise was silent the entire time he was at Arlington.

CURTIS MISSES DATE

When Laval arrived at the Capitol to call on Vice-President Curtis, the Vice-President was not in his office, but, through a misunderstanding, was awaiting the Premier in the Senate office building.

When the situation was explained to M. Laval, he asked to be shown the office anyway and was taken on a sightseeing tour about the Capitol.

After inspecting the Vice-President's empty office the premier was taken to the Senate office building where he was cordially received by Mr. Curtis.

After lunch at the French embassy, the premier and his daughter were due at the White House to become house guests of the President and Mrs. Hoover.

Tomorrow M. Laval goes to Woodley as the guest of Secretary of State Stimson.

Laval's Baggage Man Tops Heap Garbed in Height of Fashion

Washington, Oct. 23 (AP)—When a premier of France comes for a brief call on the President of the United States he requires 12 trunks, 23 suitcases and half a dozen hat boxes. So much luggage requires a "chef de baggage."

When Premier Laval's luggage was delivered by truck here the chef de baggage sat atop it. He wore striped trousers and a formal morning coat in the height of fashion.

3 low prices plus 2 trousers with every suit plus Bond's strict standards of quality—an unbeatable combination!

Men have to get a lot out of their clothes, these days. They wear them harder; and expect them to last longer—which is no problem at all for the smart men who know how, and where, to get most for their money. They are buying suits with two pairs of trousers. And most of them are coming to Bond—the world's largest maker and seller of fine two trouser suits. . . For years, we have built up standards of quality with a plus value—an extra pair of trousers. We've taken the finest fabrics money can buy—and have added many months of extra wear. We have employed tailorwork that will stand up for a long time—with two pairs of trousers to face all emergencies. We believe that the man who gets only one pair of trousers, gets only 50 cents worth of value for every dollar he spends. 1931 is certainly no year for such "half measures" . . . But that's not all. When it comes to cash savings we've probably got just a little more to talk about than most stores. We make the clothes we sell! And nobody has yet been able to equal the savings of such a thrifty policy.

JAIL FOR BOOK 'RACKETEER'

Characterized as a racketeer by Judge Counihan in East Cambridge district court, George S. Hutchinson, former employe of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, today was sentenced to one year for larceny of $3 in an alleged fake subscription scheme. He appealed and was held in $2000.

State Officer Edward P. O'Neill testified 181 subscriptions to a non-existent magazine, from chain store managers and employes through New England, had been traced to Hutchinson, also known as J. C. Clark.

C. C. Ramsey, manager of a chain store at 685 Massachusetts ave., Arlington, was the complaintant against Hutchinson, who gave his address as South Main st., Randolph.

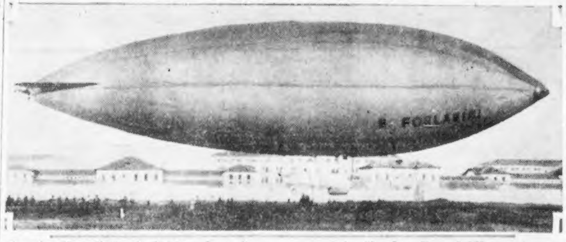
Detective O'Neill said that after leaving the employ of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, Hutchinson was employed in a legitimate trade publication.

"In my opinion," said Judge Counihan in imposing sentence in the House of Correction, "this was just another racket."

Foresters on Excursion

An excursion to Montreal over the week end is being sponsored by the Past Chief Rangers Association of Western Massachusetts of the Massachusetts Catholic Order of Foresters. The party will leave this evening from Springfield.

THIS BIG BIRD CAN SIT DOWN PRETTY



Premier Mussolini's air fighters have been busy for months with the secret construction of this big dirigible, Farlanini. Now it's finished and tested, one of the secrets has come out. She doesn't need 250 men to put her to bed. By means of specally arranged valves she can come to earth anywhere. (International Newsreel photo.)

Accused Policeman Resigns From Force

Patrolman Neil Henderson, charged with theft while on strike duty at Charlestown a week ago, resigned from the department today just as he was to face police charges. Henderson was attached to the Jamaica Plain station and lives on Saratoga st., East Boston.

Ask Hoover to Take Lead in Cancellation

New York, Oct. 23 (INS)—President Hoover will today receive a letter sent by 171 members and officers of national organizations asking the United States to "take the lead in seeking the cancellation of inter-allied war debts and reparations, on condition that armaments are limited and drastically reduced."

Hoover Had Chosen Morrow for Geneva

Washington, Oct. 23 (AP)—Word that President Hoover had decided to name the late Senator Dwight W. Morrow as a foremost member of the American delegation to the coming Geneva arms limitation conference came from the White House today.

Morrow had been a member of the American group at the London naval conference.

502 AIR CASUALS IN 6 MONTHS

Washington, Oct. 23 (INS)—During the first six months of 1931 1755 persons were involved in airplane accidents in miscellaneous flying which does not include scheduled passenger flights, the Department of Commerce announced today.

Of this number 1253 escaped injury, 216 suffered minor hurts, 123 suffered severe injuries and 163 were killed.

One hundred and nine fatal accidents occurred in this type of flying during the period, against 141 for the same time last year. All told 991 accidents occurred, compared with 917 in this class of flying in 1930. From January to June, 1930, 230 persons were killed in miscellaneous flying.

Bolivia-Paraguay Dispute Near End

Washington, Oct. 23 (AP)—From Paraguay came an expression of confidence toda ythat troubles in the Gran Chaco would be settled peaceably with Bolivia.

Bolivia is considered eager for the Chaco to give her a water outlet. Armed cruisers between the two nations in the past have interrupted attempts to settle the dispute.

Battle of Yorktown Won All Over Again by P. O. Troops

Washington, Oct. 23 (AP)—Crack troops of the post office department licked the enemy at the Battle of Yorktown, but what a war it was!

Michael L. Eidsness, superintendent of the stamp division, was the field marshal of 30 employes, and he reported it looked for a time as if the campaign would end in a second surrender.

Thousands of requests for the special Yorktown memorial stamp kept his forces charging pellmell. So much so that in one day the post office there did 10,000 times as much business as any other day in its history.

Ten sacks of requests from philatelists were returned to Washington to be filled immediately.

One popular place branch office was that of the frigate Constitution. Man ycollectors, Eidsness said, rowed to the old ship several times to get stamps bearing "U. S. Frigate Constitution, Oct. 19, 1931," as the cancellation date.

Suspect Seized in Shooting of Raider

New York, Oct. 23—The shooting of Robert H. Whited, a prohibition agent, last August, led to the arrest yesterday of a man described as Frank Ahearn. Ahearn was held in $5000 bail by U. S. Commissioner Garrett W. Cotter.

PAUPER COFFIN FOR WRITER

Vienna, Oct. 23 (AP)—Arthur Schnitzler, who died on Wednesday leaving the world richer for his writings, was buried today in a pauper's coffin like a man without a friend.

It was at his own request expressed in a codicil to a will written 20 years ago, directing that no one wear mourning and that the funeral be of the "very last," or pauper class.

There were no wreaths, no obituary announcements and no honorary pallbearers. Only a bouquet of blazing chrysanthemums relieved the stark simplicity of the rough, wooden coffin.

But it was not, after all, a pauper's ceremony, the writers friends came from far and near. Literary, artistic, diplomatic and official circles were represented and their luxurious cars blocked the roads outside the cemetery.

Princess Becomes Plain U. S. Citizen

Detroit, Oct. 23 (AP)—Mrs. Tamara Rybakoff has decided it is better to be just a plain, every day American citizen than a Russian princess. She is a princess of the house of Kropatkin, her first husband having died fighting the Bolsheviki.

A son, Igor, Prince Kropatkin, must wait until he's 21 before he can renounce his title.

WARD 14 VOTE FRAUD BARED

Complaints regarding an alleged influx of "mattress" voters in Ward 14 in the bitter City Council fight, will be made to the election commission, it was expected today.

Charges that between 600 and 1800 "mattress" voters—those who do not live in the ward but are registered there—have been bruited about thus far in the day and night rallies of the opposing candidates.

Up to today no complaints regarding illegal registration had been made to the election commission, nor had there been any demand for a probe of conditions in the ward. It was expected, however, that such action would be taken by one or more of the candidates in the seven-cornered fight.

At present the new registration in Ward 14 is about 2400 and various estimates place between 600 and 1800 of these voters in the "mattress" class.

Friends of City Councilor Israel Ruby say that the campaign to flood the district with "mattress" voters is aimed particularly at him.

A British artist, famous for his drawings of cats, is now in a mental hospital in London. Now he draws demon cats with hideous or grotesque faces. Some of these sketches appear with the story of the artist in the American Weekly in the next Boston Sunday Advertiser.

CREATE DULL PEOPLE THE SECRET AIM OF SCIENCE

By GILBERT SELDES

I DO NOT SUPPOSE that the scientists of the world have formed a gigantic conspiracy to discourage human beings, but they are making headway as if they had no object in life whatever except to produce dull people. The latest terror they have discovered is the baleful effect of the emotions. It is not with our minds alone that we are afraid, says Dr. George W. Crile, but with all our organs, and a dozen vulgar phrases bear witness that we knew it all along. But Dr. Crile goes farther and warns us that our emotions set up infections in our bodies. The heart and the kidneys and the pancreas pay for our excesses of fear and hate and worry. As for the profound emotion of love, the ravages of Eros are so well known and feared that Dr. Crile does not even mention it.

GILBERT SELDES

Those Glands Again

The glands, you may be sure, are at the bottom of it; the little monsters have become imps of all work in current medical mythology. We get mad; the adrenal or thyroid glands go into high; and, the first thing we know, we have permanent high blood pressure, heart disease, and diabetes. I am incompetent to question the accuracy of this semi-fatal series of events; all I question is Dr. Crile's implied intention to prevent it from occurring. He believes that in a few years the profession of medicine will become preventive, rather than curative; a man will go to his doctor and say "I am as I am. Keep thou me from all ill." And the doctor will say, "Don't worry. Don't hate. Don't be afraid."

Another system of cures has, for the past twenty years, been teaching the same lesson. Psychoanalysts have, to be sure, told us that a complex may be sublimated; they have suggested that genius is pretty sure to be tangled and torn in the briars of life, full of suppressions which find devious outlets in sculpture and poem and song. Yet, obviously, the ideal situation is one which creates no complexes whatever; the happy man has no hair-shirt. All of the systems of modern education which stem from Freud attempt to keep children from developing fixations; the Adlerians would avoid the despairing sense of inferiority.

What, No Complexes?

Many years ago, when the name of Freud was just beginning to be heard in the land, a woman who said she was the first American ever analyzed—and that's as notable as swimming the Channel—looked into my adolescent eye and said, with bewilderment, and I thought, reproach, "You know, you have no complexes." If she had said I had no eyebrows, I should have been no more surprised. Since then the memory of that curt dismissal has given me pain, as it has become clear that without a few good complexes you are socially and intellectually nowhere.

The way to avoid nervous entanglements is to lead the dull life of an animal. It is, according to another popular prophet of the time, the way to success. Oswald Spengler may bring the whole of history to bear on his theories; in the end he is telling young men of today that they must not try to be anything but mechanics, because this is a mechanical age. And somewhere behind the facade of Dr. John B. Watson's behaviorism lies the notion that it is not particularly desirable to be the exception, that you can be perfectly adjusted to the life around you.

The late T. A. Dorgan (Tad, of "Indoor Sports") was not a scientist, but he knew, and liked and disliked human beings. One of his recently reprinted pictures is of a political candidate who "is so square, he'd spoil the works" with his demands to "take the bull out of government economy, take the blarney out of farm relief, take the blah out of our political promises." From the wings a voice cries, "That's silly—say, there'd be nothing left;" and another answers, "We need bunk—the world thrives on it."

I match Tad against the men of science. The men of science have discovered that our emotions are dangerous to us; the Tads of the world have always known it and decided they'd take the risk.

The Bourgeois Rises

Privately it pleases me to think that the psychoanalysts and the scientists and the philosophers have been the pets of the bourgeois-haters, and that no defense of the bourgeois has ever been so thorough as the one which the philosophers and scientists and psychoanalysts are now erecting. The all-too-solid middle class has been scorned because it refused to be mad and wanton and artistic; because it lived placid, well-regulated lives. And all we learn now is that if we are calm, and do not fly off the emotional handle, and stick to the middle of the road, we shall fulfil the ideal of our severest critics. There was never a better argument for moderation and conservatism than the theories of the radicals.

The Greeks had two words for it: "maden agan," nothing in excess. They disliked even too much virtue. They wouldn't have cared for our record-breakers, our largest and tallest and longest; I doubt whether they would have been excited by our flagpole sitters. But they might have observed the drygoods dealer in Ohio, the farmer in Nebraska, or the small-town lawyer in Vermont, and decided that he was probably a more complete man than the exasperated critics who want him to be an artist. On the other hand, I am not sure that any good Greek would have been terrified into an emotional coma by the threat of high blood pressure. He would know how high was high enough; and he wouldn't have been bullied by the romantic people who say that you must have too much before you have enough.

Millions for Defense

Mr. John Barrymore, it appears, thinks that forty million dollars is enough. He was asked whether he intended to quit the pictures and devote himself to gratifying his own interests; he replied that until he had forty millions, the idea was impracticable.

A bit of the ostentatious side, I think; perhaps a trace vulgar. Surely a man of intellectual tastes, a man of talent could do with twenty-five million. Considering that Mr. Barrymore can, when pinched for another yacht, always go back for a special picture; or if he needs new silk socks, can earn about three thousand a week on the stage, his demand for a forty-million-dollar security is excessive. Especially when you consider that when he left the stage, of which he was the first ornament, to become one of the secondary figures of the screen, he gave up something worth at least another million; the work he did best in the world.

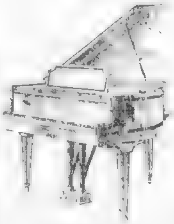
An Extraordinary Event!!!

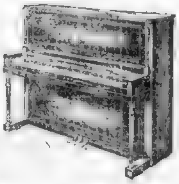
New England's Oldest Piano Manufacturer

Established in Boston in 1851.

Celebrating the 80th Anniversary

VOSE & SONS PIANO CO.



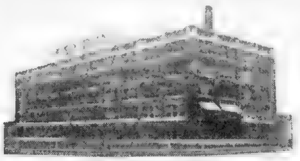


With the Most Exceptional Piano Values That New England Has Ever Been Offered!

94 NEW VOSE PIANOS

HIGHLIGHTS OF VOSE HISTORY

- Three generations of the Vose family have been making the Vose Piano since 1851
- The first Vose Piano was made in Boston just 80 years ago by James Whitney Vose
- Because of the lofty ideals held by this New England family of artist craftsmen the Vose Piano today is one of unquestioned superiority
- Therefore our 80th Anniversary is not just another piano sale but an event that has been in the making for 80 years



THE VOSE PIANO FACTORY

Watertown (Greater Boston) Massachusetts

At Real and Unusual Reductions of $100 to $200

On the 80th Anniversary of the Vose Piano, the present descendents of the Vose family decided to most fittingly commemorate this event by offering the public an opportunity of benefiting by its celebration. The superb qualities and artistry that have given the Vose Piano a world-wide reputation of excellence are an assurance to you that these pianos present a timely opportunity to wisely invest now, in your choice of style and finish. We invite you to join the great Vose family party on its 80th birthday and save $100 to $200 from our nationally advertised prices on the purchase of a new Vose Piano.

This is the piano opportunity of a lifetime as prices on these exquisite instruments can never again be offered at such a low figure. Even with these low prices, the Vose Piano Company will adhere to its easy payment plan which includes a small down payment and the balance in easy monthly terms. A liberal allowance will be made for your present piano.

The richest child is poor without musical training

Open Evenings Until 9 P. M.

We feel that the additional good will created for the Vose Piano among the fortunate purchasers during this sale will more than justify this sacrifice in making these reductions. Inquiry, by mail, solicited.

SIX WIVES WIN DIVORCES IN 45 MINUTES

[illegible]

'A month after we were married,' she said, 'I came home from shopping for the Sunday dinner. I rang the bell and he came to the door. I saw he had been drinking. There was a bottle on the table.

'He grabbed me by the throat and pushed me and kicked me. I closed the door so the landlady would not hear me and he kicked the door and swore profanely. Then he hit me on the head with the bottle and dazed me.'

He was sober only three or four times during the time we were married.

[illegible]

'When he was drunk,' she testified, 'he usually threatened to kill me. In August [illegible] when I met him at Humboldt ave. and Townsend st. he showed me an [illegible] knife and told me he would kill me if I didn't stay out of his way. He never gave me any money.'

[illegible]

'He left me in 19[illegible],' she said, 'but before he left he blacked both my eyes and hit me. He [illegible] things at me and he [illegible] on my head.'

[illegible]

'He told me he loved somebody else better,' Mrs. Larlee testified. 'He never supported the children and never gave me any money.'

[illegible]

'In January 19[illegible],' she testified, 'I was at a dance with a girl friend and my husband was sitting in the balcony. Finally he came down to the dance floor and ordered me to get on my hat and coat.

'I had a bundle belonging to my friend and took it up to her in the balcony. He followed me up and pushed me so hard that I fell against the soda fountain.

On the way home he hit me twice in the mouth.

'When we got home he tore off my hat and coat and pushed me into a chair. Then he tore the clothes off me.

In August 1928 he told me he would not live with me any more and I knew he was running around with some other girl. He left me, but came back in two weeks, begging me to take him back, which I did.

'He was all right for a little while and then he became more abusive.'

She was granted a decree.

[For one thing, his folks feed him Bond Bread, so he gets his extra sunshine vitamin-D]

Your Athletics Director knows about this body-builder. Ask him!

FOR a strong body, straight bones, sound teeth and happier health, everybody must have a steady, plentiful supply of sunshine vitamin-D every day. Yet this precious, health-building element is the rarest of all the vitamins. You get all the others in well-balanced meals. But not enough sunshine vitamin-D.

NOW YOU CAN GET ENOUGH

Science has at last found the way of giving all of us this sunshine vitamin-D in food. And the food is delicious, nourishing, inexpensive food that more than a million families have on the table every day—Bond Bread!

And Bond Bread is the only table food that does give you this extra health value—the extra quantity of sunshine vitamin-D that every human body requires every day.

SAME DELICIOUS FLAVOR

You can't taste sunshine vitamin-D. You can't see it. But what a difference it makes! Remember, too, Bond is the one loaf in which rising is stopped at the Flavor-Peak to insure its taste and texture. Your grocer has Bond Bread. It costs no more even with this priceless new improvement, vitamin-D.

OFFICIALLY APPROVED BY HIGHEST AUTHORITIES

Every claim made in this advertisement has been specifically checked and approved by recognized scientific authority.

NEW DEVICE TO REVOLUTIONIZE ENGRAVING

REVOLUTIONIZES ART

Edward G. Wind [illegible] of the government printing office, Mat Wallace [illegible] former [illegible] of the bureau of engraving and printing and E. F. Burr, foreman of the photo-engraving department at the government printing office, manifested intense interest in the [illegible] and expressed the belief that it would revolutionize the art of [illegible] publications.

The outstanding feature of the demonstration which was given at the National Press Club by R. W. Woods, [illegible] electrical engineer, was the vivid interest shown by the large number of Washington engravers and highly favorable opinions expressed by them concerning the [illegible] possibilities of the miracle-performing device.

The machine was invented by Walter Howey, head of the International News Photos, the largest picture organization in the world.

DREAM OF 30 YEARS

Howey has been at work on the machine for 30 years. He began work on it with the hope of making photographs [illegible] available to newspapers, particularly those in [illegible] cities which lack engraving facilities or are not able to afford the expense of an engraving plant.

The [illegible] not only marveled at the speed of the machine in [illegible] photographs [illegible] purposes [illegible] commented on the simplicity of its operation.

The advantages of Howey's device are that it will [illegible] in one-tenth of the time now required and at a fraction of the present cost. It eliminates the necessity of rephotographing pictures on metal [illegible] and also [illegible] chemicals and [illegible].

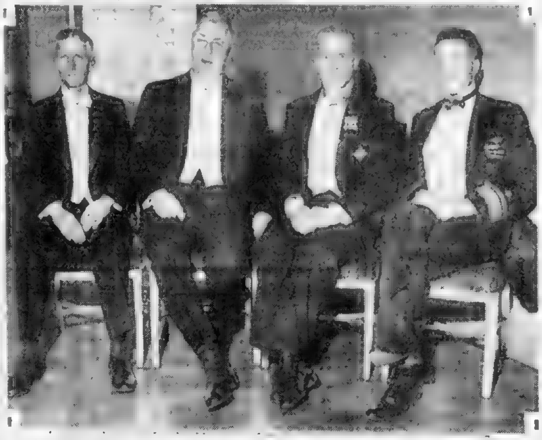
BOSTON GETS PLACE IN "SKIES OF FAME"



COMMANDER READ DR. ECKENER SIR ARTHUR BROWN ADMIRAL BYRD

Boston was represented in the friendship dinner of famous airmen, held at the Waldorf Astoria, New York, by Admiral Richard E. Byrd, who has flown over the North and South Poles and has made a transatlantic crossing. Above is a group of famous airmen, who have done much to establish good-will among nations. In the group are, left to right, Commander A. C. Read, who made the first Atlantic flight by airplane; Dr. Hugo Eckener, who first circumnavigated the globe in an airship; Sir Arthur Whitten Brown, who made the first non-stop Atlantic crossing, and Admiral Richard E. Byrd.

FLIES PLANE TO TAUNT WIFE

Hammond, Ind., Oct. 23 (AP) A bright red airplane has been bothering Mrs. Robert Quigley, but it looks now as though it will not annoy her any more.

It was her husband who, she said, went across the State line into Illinois ahead of a warrant charging nonsupport. Then he bought an airplane, she complained, "just to taunt me with," and from the safety of the sky would glide down over his wife's house and then scoot back over the boundary line.

"But wait," Mrs. Quigley would say.

Yesterday the waiting ended. The bright red plane came down as usual, but it dipped too far and nose dived into a tree.

Quigley, unhurt, was captured and taken to jail.

WHAT SCIENTISTS ADVISE for MOTHER and BABY will help YOUR teeth... too!

BEFORE baby is born and after, modern science urges mothers to eat foods rich in calcium. Calcium is vital to good health, especially in babies and children. It helps the growth of sound teeth, strong bones and steady nerves.

Milk and green vegetables contain calcium. Nearly every mother knows how fresh milk supplies this nourishing mineral food. And Rumford, all-phosphate baking powder, is so rich in calcium that two average Rumford biscuits contain more calcium than a large glass of milk.

Let your youngsters have lots of milk. Drink it yourself. And serve plenty of foods cooked and baked with Rumford. Write today for booklet of facts concerning this excellent way of assuring a sufficient supply of calcium and phosphates in diet.

"BULK," VITAMIN B, IRON All in Kellogg's ALL-BRAN

If you suffer from ordinary constipation, you will be benefited by Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. Millions have found it brings relief.

Scientific tests show ALL-BRAN supplies "bulk," Vitamin B and iron. "Bulk" promotes elimination. Vitamin B tones the intestinal tract. Iron helps build blood.

In the package, ALL-BRAN has a shredded appearance. But within the body, it changes to a soft mass, which gently cleanses the intestines. It is much like the "bulk" in lettuce or spinach.

Get the red-and-green package at your grocer's. Try two tablespoonfuls daily for a week. ALL-BRAN is natural—far better than pills or drugs, which may cause too strenuous action.

Have you heard about OXYDOL?

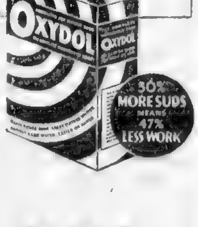
Tired out? You ought to do your washing with Oxydol
Oh, thanks—I'm simply lost without Oxydol
You'd never believe soap could make suds so rich and quick



OXYDOL
50% MORE SUDS MEANS 47% LESS WORK

It makes 50% more suds. That's why Oxydol, the new soap discovery, is such a blessing to women.

That's why it simply floats dirt out of clothes—soaks them whiter, fresh and clean. That's why it softens hard water—makes richer, cleansing suds in any water.

And on top of it all, it's easier on hands—makes them feel so comfortable that you know it's safe for dainty things.

Try it for dishes—the billowy suds dissolve the grease—and make glassware sparkle without a dish-towel.

Let Oxydol do your hardest work—starting today.

SLEUTHS FIGHT GAMBLERS ON 'WHOOPEE TRIP'

Washington, Oct. 23 (INS)—A protest against the one-day whoopee trips of British and other liners from American ports, were registered with Secretary [illegible] today by Capt. John F. Milliken, secretary of the Neptune Association of New York. Milliken said these trips violated the American coastwise laws.

"In the minority" says the Sun's story "were some determined gamblers. They started dice games on the deck at $20 a throw. The ship's detectives put a stop to that, and the gamblers adjourned to the bar.

The approach of dawn found almost everybody asleep except the gamblers and the detectives, each party keeping an eye on the other.

BATTLE DETECTIVES

Somebody swung on a detective, and [illegible] Short of the line's staff sent an emergency call for six Metropolitan Marine detectives who were taking the trip as passengers as a reward for some good work recently. They leaped out of bed and arrived in time to be of considerable assistance.

"Detective Cleary laid out the ringleader. Another detective topped two or three side fights. Four men jumped on him and laid him out. One man in a dinner coat tried to separate two of the fighters and was laid out."

"And so the Sun story continued, when the boat docked last night there were a number of bandaged heads and bruised faces.

CAMP PETTING ADMITTED BY MOTHER OF 2

Salem, Oct. 23—Mrs. Florence Grady, [illegible] wife of Ernest G. Grady of Adams st., Lynn, admitted she had kept a number of dates, gone on several petting parties and had taken an occasional drink, as she fought her husband's petition in probate court for the custody of their two children.

She stoutly denied any wrong-doing however and told Judge Alden P. White that she loved her children. The couple have been separated since July.

EACH GET CHILD

Judge White decided that the husband should be granted the custody of the oldest child, 3 while the youngest, [illegible] 13 months, was given to the mother. He declared that while Mrs. Grady's conduct was reprehensible and blameworthy, he could find nothing in the testimony which supported any charge of [illegible]

Grady, a truck driver, testified his wife had been brought home several times by other men, intoxicated.

Mrs. Grady [illegible] to the stand, said she had only gone for a little harmless amusement.

"On July 27," she said, "I went to a camp in the Middleton woods near Danvers with a party of four men and three women. We got there about 9.30 p. m. and we all had half a glass of beer apiece.

TELLS OF KISSING

"Then we split up and each couple wandered away for a while. We stayed away for two hours. I sat on my boy friend's lap and for half an hour we had a kissing party and lots of cuddling. My boy friend was the only one I kissed."

[illegible]

HER KISSING HARMLESS

Mrs. Florence Grady, fighting her husband, Ernst, of Adams st., Lynn, for custody of her two children in Salem Probate Court, calmly admitted going on petting parties with boy friends, but stoutly denied any wrong doing. Judge Alden P. White granted her custody of her youngest child.

GREATER BOSTON NEWS

NEW "SAVE THE NAVY YARD" FIGHT TUESDAY

THIS IS LIFE

HOLLIS ST WOULD RISE FROM ASHES OF A TIME THAT IS WHOLLY DEAD

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

ROBERT E. ROGERS

THE NEWS COMES that a devoted group of Boston lovers of the theater are going to try to open the old Hollis Street Theater again and to attract its old audience, the public of [illegible] go to the [illegible] the [illegible] had hoped to benefit. In the same paper we read that Arthur Schnitzler, the Viennese dramatist, author of "Anatol" and "Dr. Bernhardi," is dead at the age of 70.

There is no connection of course between the two bits of news, and only a person like myself who is hipped on seeing patterns, designs and correspondence in life, in an attempt to make something [illegible] but significant [illegible] self, who [illegible] connection.

But Dr. [illegible] sentative figure [illegible] the war, the Vienna of the Strauss wa[illegible] von Stroheim, the film actor and director [illegible] in his film "The Wedding March" [illegible] Liebelei.

A Vienna of Love and Youth

Even as Schnitzler wrote his p[illegible] war, he seemed to be writing them [illegible] memory of something too youthful and too beautiful to last. T[illegible] of the twilight, of middle age looking back at youth. There was in them little of the headlong power and passion and irresponsibility of young people. One looked through a thin veil of disillusionment and disappointment at a world which was growing middle-aged and twilit. The roses were all ashes of roses.

Today that is the way every returned traveler speaks of Vienna and Austria, as a sad memory of s[illegible] was very lovely in its fashion. It was not [illegible] liked to know of it in the plays of this thoughtful and serious physician, who brought the knowledge of a medical man and psychologist and the wisdom of a Jew to the problems of these Viennese butterflies. "Anatol" and "[illegible]" [illegible] ring around-a-rosy of sexual [illegible] lously, not at all bawdily, but soberly and with sympathetic irony. And in "Dr. Bernhardi," that tragic story of a hospital physician, Schnitzler made his profession of faith as a scientist and as a Jew.

I do not exactly know why the one reminds me of [illegible] except that in its prime the Hollis Street Theater did really represent a Boston that is gone, a Boston in which good [illegible] could be depended upon to go to the Hollis, to see a [illegible] of play and a certain kind of actor, almost as much a [illegible], of course, as to attend the Symphony.

Its Art Authenticated Only

Old Boston has not, and never did have, any artistic sense. It is, for instance, almost blind to art, unless it be well-authenticated, archaeological art, safely dead and dug up by the right people. The almost complete absence of "moderns" in the Museum is too noticeable to be accidental. The Boston Symphony and the Hollis Street Theater represent old Boston's habitual approach to the arts.

It was the theater of the stars of the middle period. One could always be sure of seeing there, from time to time, John Drew, Maude Adams, Otis Skinner, Viola Allen, Margaret Anglin, William Gillette, Ethel Barrymore, and other notables of that stage generation. One associates the theater with the best period of Charles Frohman's importations, which did so much to cosmopolitanize our theater; the plays of Pinero, Jones, Barrie and Galsworthy (seldom of Shaw); of Somerset Maugham and others of his school of polite and [illegible] comedy, the b[illegible] French adaptations, and the plays of such American practitioners as Augustus Thomas, Clyde Fitch and their confreres. These plays and players old Boston attended faithfully.

The older generation of actors is passing. None has come forward to take their places with such authority. An occasional Katherine Cornell seems likely, but for the most part the younger stars are meteor-like in their flight from obscurity to obscurity. The creative drama in England and France seems dead. American drama seems to have gone hopelessly Broadway and Hollywood. And the children of the audience that attended the old Hollis seek their amusements in country-house society or in night clubs, rather than in the serious theater. If Mr. Russell Churchill and his associates can bring back the old Hollis atmosphere and the old audience to the Hollis, we shall all be glad for their sakes and our own.

But—Can It Be Done?

Schnitzler and the Hollis, in their different ways, represented something that had to pass, an ordered and stable society in which certain things could be counted upon. The war destroyed Schnitzler's Vienna. The post-war barbarism of America disintegrated the Hollis audience and made its plays out of date. As I said a day or two ago, in commenting on "The Dark Horse," Judge Grant seems to see older Boston staging a comeback, but even he, I think, would be the first to admit that you cannot turn back the clock.

In spite of the Theater Guild's enthusiasm in bringing to our American theater the best of the theatrical literature of Middle Europe, it is significant that almost never did it turn back to Schnitzler. It preferred the newer, rawer, more cerebral, less pathetic works of the younger Austrians and the Hungarians. The difference between Schnitzler and Molnar marks the gulf.

Similarly we shall not see the old plays, nor anything like them, in the resuscitated Hollis. Nor its old audience. We can but hope that it will be a newer, smarter, perhaps a mo[illegible] artistic audience than the old, and that its plays will be the be[illegible] of the current mode, such pieces as "Private Lives," which is obviously Hollis Street meat; Miss Cornell's "Barretts of Wimpole Street," and other pieces that do not offend the susceptibilities of clever and intelligent gentlefolk.

'ANDY' PUTS THE BRAKES ON A LONG TREK

INSPECTOR LEARY   ANDREW ANGELAMO   WINCY STANCONAS   GEORGE ANGELAMO

Warren st., East Cambridge, lost a part of its population yesterday when three adventurous lads packed their kits and started on the western trail. They were Andrew Angelamo, 3; his brother, George, 4, and Wincy Stanconas, 5. Central sq., with its traffic signals, called for a solution, so they tackled Officer Menton. He detoured them to police headquarters. "It was all okay but for Andy," said Wincy, "he's too little and gets tired." Inspector Leary took charge of things. (Staff photo.)

ASH TRAYS FOR WELLESLEY

FAIR SMOKERS DEMAND 'EM

That pall of curling murk hang- [illegible]

The demand for more ash trays came quaintly enough after some male busybody had revealed that on a certain local from Wellesley headed for Boston the smoking car carried 53 persons, 31 of them girls, and of the 31 girls 27 were smoking, while only [illegible] of the 22 men were puffing.

But here is the letter appearing in the Wellesley College News and [illegible]

"Just what is the chief [illegible] tion to smoking in some part of the campus dormitories during regulated hours. The college houses have been equipped with every modern convenience and all articles for assuring comfort except ash trays.

"Certainly those who do not smoke would not object to the smoking of others after dinner in the dining room or some specified place. If the non-smokers do feel violently about the above practices in dormitories, let them come to the fore and state the basis for their opposition."

THEY'RE STARTING YOUNG, BUT THAT'S HOW ALL GRIDIRON STARS BEGIN

WAITING FOR SIGNALS

The "Wanderers" are shaping up good this season and from what the coach says it looks as though they would take 'em as they come. Here's one of the boys ready to start the ball flying to his speedy halfback.

PLACE KICK

Steady, now, boys. We've got 'em, but every point counts. If everything comes out right, that ball will go sailing right between the posts.

"I GOT YER THAT TIME"

The ball may seem too big for the little fellow, but he can't do much, anyway, for his opponent doesn't appear at all ready to let him go.

FIRST DOWN, AND A GOOD ONE, TOO

This worried fullback was going good, with plenty of yards behind, when he was flattened. These pictures were taken at the New England Home for Little Wanderers, at 161 South Huntington ave., by a staff photographer.

Baker's Speaking Date to Be Nov. 17

Newton D. Baker, Secretary of War under President Wilson, will speak before the Chamber of Commerce November 17, instead of the 19th, the committee on members luncheons announced today. Mr. Baker asked the change to conform with his engagements.

Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., president of General Motors, will be guest speaker at the luncheon on Thursday, January 7.

Public SERVANTS

SECURITY

THE American people maintain their Standing Army for the sense of security it gives them . . . a potential force ready for any national emergency.

In many ways Gas is like a Standing Army. It is "in the Service" of the public. To be sure, you may think of it only when your routine needs require its presence, but Gas is always "mobilized"—ready to obey instantly your slightest command. Even when the hush of night has fallen, Gas is still there to carry on.

Gas is forever working in homes and in industry to capture new efficiency and defeat drudgery.

Gas is always there when you want it—sixty minutes an hour . . . twenty-four hours a day . . . year after year. This sense of constant security is one of the intangible values of Gas—the perfect fuel. Are there not new ways that you, too, may enlist its comfort and convenience?

USE GAS ...THE BETTER FUEL

• Visit any of the conveniently located neighborhood Showrooms of the Boston Consolidated Gas Company and see the latest in Gas Appliances.

• There are many practical uses for Gas . . . in every home. And where you see housewives, unweary and happy, doing difficult work EASILY . . . GAS, the unrivaled servant, has been the problem-solver.

At any rate, the kid is working it successfully. . . . The chances are that the money he gives the spiel to, eager to make an impression on the girl, [illegible] with will dig into his pocket and toss the kid a nickel or a dime. . . . The kid has pulled his story on me, word for word, twice already and Wednesday night, at the Queenie Smith opening, [illegible] proached me again. I must have 'sucker' written [illegible] face I guess. . . . This time, however, he recognized me [illegible] customer so he just winked at me, grinned and [illegible] his sad face to another victim.

Nolly Gains Suitor for Herself

EVIDENTLY Drake was [illegible] wasn't [illegible] any [illegible] had admitted [illegible] came to refer [illegible] on [illegible] the [illegible] unexpected experience. The dazzling young [illegible] how many [illegible] she [illegible] appeared on one [illegible] had [illegible] made [illegible] her description. She can [illegible] to notice her and [illegible] special pains to [illegible] The occasional visits [illegible] were [illegible] the gay spinning of the glasses [illegible] did not share [illegible] sent her home afterwards [illegible] happy [illegible] she would have [illegible]

And even Nolly had something [illegible] come into her narrow existence

"I went to the movies last night," she told Venice one afternoon, her puckish face bright with excitement, "Imagine, with a young man!"

"No, Nolly. How lovely. Who was it"

"A new doctor Mother took me to him about a month ago I don't believe he's doing me any good, really, but he seems to think I'm nice. He has a car. And last night he took me to the Strand, I felt silly ploughing across the pavement and pulling Pongo down the aisle with me, but Dr. Price didn't seem to mind and Pongo and I had a gorgeous time."

"Of course he didn't mind You're really a darling Nolly He's probably discovered it"

"I don't know. But he has wonderful ideas all carefully pigeon holed. And of course I have so much time to sit and do nothing but think that my ideas are neatly filed away, too. We looked into each other's pigeon-holes and quite approved He's invited mother and father and me to dinner next Thursday. I can hardly bear it, I'm so excited Father said, 'Whoopee, we're dining with Nolly's suitor.'"

"Soon you'll be able to regale me with stories of your goings on" Venice tried to keep her voice level and teasing Glad as she was for Nolly she could not help wondering if even her own oases of respite were to disappear now

[illegible]

"What'll I wear next Thursday, Venice? I have only this and a dark blue chiffon that's not long enough for nowadays"

"Oh," she said, quickly. "I have a beige velvet that's too tight for me. Wouldn't you take it, Nolly? You'd look lovely in it. And it's absolutely no use to me any more."

The elfin face stared hard at her to make sure that this was not [illegible]

"Really, Venice? I'd love it Oh, I am excited" She clapped her hands like a small child

Venice [illegible] a desire to cry She [illegible]

"You—you wouldn't come and help me dress Thursday, would you? Mother's sweet but she doesn't go about very much and you might give me some smart ideas"

"Certainly I will."

It was that Thursday that Mrs. Muir chose to give a tea, so Venice went to the Spaldings' the beige velvet in a box, at about three

"You can't get into your glad rags now, Nolly," she said, "but I had to come early. Mother's having a tea and I promised to get back in time to pass things and smile sweetly at all the ladies Mrs. Muir's delightful daughter you know sort of thing"

"What a nuisance. But I'll dress now I can sit carefully 'til it's time to go but I must have you to help me."

Nolly looked thoroughly charming. The velvet frock fell to her ankles and hid the [illegible] formed leg It was square-cut at the neck and her small, dark face rose above the soft coffee-color in flushed excitement.

Christmas, Lincoln's Birthday Washington's Birthday, Easter marched slowly by. Venice's invitations became fewer, duller, farther apart Not a word from Drake Farrelly and she had put the thought of his eventually telephoning resolutely from her mind. Sitting with her mother one evening she was surprised to see Mrs. Muir unexpectedly put down her newspaper eye her with [illegible] in her glance and say as though a deep and long sought-for decision had been reached "I think I'll take you abroad next month Venice"

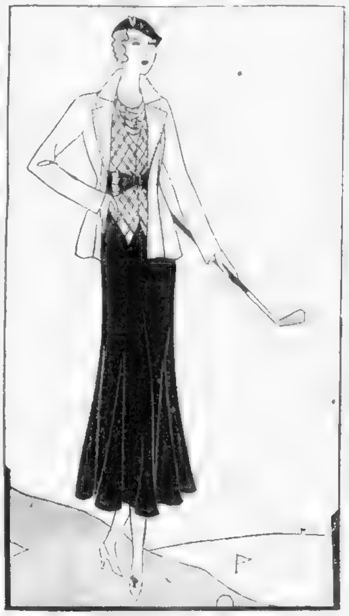
(Copyright Harriet Henry)

In the midst of plans for departure, Drake telephones at last, in the next instalment. What does he want?

SUGGESTED BY LUCILE

Smart Sport or Town Ensemble

SKETCHED IN PARIS



A very smart sport or town ensemble is had in this model from Lucile. The jacket, a slightly fitted affair, is of canary yellow wool jersey, while the skirt is of similar jersey in navy blue. The waistcoat and kerchief at the neck are of plaid jersey in yellow, blue and black, and there is a wide black patent leather belt with a plaided galalith buckle. Narrow godets are placed at the front and sides of the skirt to give a comfortable width to the lower edge.

Shun Alleged 'Cures'

By R. S. COPELAND, M. D.

RECENTLY one of my readers became alarmed because he had visited a friend with tubercul[illegible]sis of the kidney. He w[illegible]

Dr. Copeland

[illegible] of the kidney have come to the attention of doctors. This need not mean there is actually an increase of this disease

It does mean that [illegible] the study of the kidney and [illegible]nary tract, is making progress. Much information concerning this disease has been gained As a result of this new knowl[illegible] tuberculosis of the kidney is more readily recognized today. As a matter of fact then there are no more cases probably, but more discovered

If recognized early, tuberculosis of the kidney may be [illegible]. If neglected the disease is a progressive one and [illegible] a great deal [illegible]

When one kidney is [illegible] kidney is removed the remaining [illegible] to do the [illegible] kidney is left in place [illegible] process of disease make demands on the illness and [illegible] disease is confined to one kidney [illegible] to cause the good organ to do more than double work.

Many patent medicines are taken by the public for disturbances of the kidney and bladder. This is a bad habit. By depending upon the alleged virtues of this or that remedy valuable time is lost Scientific care is demanded if the dangers are to be avoided

Pa Wearing Ma's Old Shoes

By ELSIE ROBINSON.

FEELING LOW?

Want a laugh?

Heard about depression?

But you don't know the half!

Wait until you hear about Harry's news!

And not merely Harry's Many another aggrieved and [illegible] gent is echoing Harry's lament For that's what the unemployment situation is [illegible] plenty of pants in the year 1931—AND MAYBE IT MIGHT DO WORSE Perhaps after this they won't be so sure that the Dear Little Woman has the softest snap on earth

Elsie Robinson

Is it a ready truly letter? Yes sir, it is. And now that's settled [illegible] dive in

Dear Miss Robinson

"Two years ago I was a happy man with a good job, a wife and baby and a nice little home Now I don't know what I am!

Perhaps I should be ashamed to send a columnist a letter like this but it seems to me a lot more important than some of the stuff papers print. At any rate, maybe you can give me a tip on how to get out of the pickle I'm in

A year and a half ago I was laid off. My place was taken by a girl at a lower salary For a while we lived on my savings Then a year ago my wife got a job at good pay Now she is a clever girl and I am crazy about her but this job of hers has certainly put me in a bad spot

FOR SHE SAYS THAT IF SHE EARNS OUR LIVING, IT IS UP TO ME TO DO ALL THE HOUSEWORK AND TAKE CARE OF THE BABY!

"WHEN MY WIFE GETS HOME AT NIGHT, SHE CLAIMS SHE IS TOO TIRED TO DO ANYTHING AROUND THE HOUSE SHE IS TIRED, I KNOW, BUT SHE EVEN INSISTS THAT I WASH AND IRON HER CLOTHES FOR HER SHE KICKS IF SUPPER ISN'T READY WHEN SHE GETS IN OR IF IT ISN'T JUST WHAT SHE WANTS

"ALSO SHE KEEPS THE PAY ENVELOPE AND I NEVER SEE ANY CASH.

"She buys my cigarettes and does the marketing on her way home She takes me to a movie sometimes and buys me a soda but I never have a cent of cash She buys things for the kid but she never buys me any clothes. I have actually had to learn to mend but even my mended clothes have worn out I'm even wearing some old shoes of hers—we're about of a size When I complain she says that such old things are plenty good enough to wear around the house"

Miss Robinson I can't tell you how I'm sane. Can you imagine what it means to a man to have to endure this?

HARRY WILSON"

Can I imagine? An' how-w, brother! And so can many millions of other ladies For we've all been through it too

We didn't have any cash, either

Why is the Modern Woman so ornery? Why is she always yelling about her Rights? Why does she frequently grab some man's job—as a gal grabbed yours—and refuse to be anyone's Domestic Treasure?

That's why Harry! Now you're getting hep to WHAT EVERY WOMAN KNOWS!

What [illegible] was the [illegible] What mystery lay back of this strange disappearance?

[illegible] Derrick [illegible] bring Derrick back [illegible]

From the first he had regarded [illegible] as a willing [illegible] of the bank [illegible] Why not take a [illegible] and bury himself in some large city?

He sat on his horse scanning the country wondering which way to turn and what to do next, when he was startled to hear a [illegible]

His hand tightened on the [illegible] and [illegible] a girl [illegible] toward him.

SHOT IN THE STILLNESS

When she saw Joe a look of [illegible] relief broke over her face

"Come with me" she said quickly, "there's trouble over there"

Joe slid to the ground and leading the horse made his way after her. In a small clearing he saw two men one of them he recognized at once as the missing banker the other was [illegible] against a tree holding his side

"I guess I'm done for," he gasped, but there was no pity in the eyes of Derrick as he stood watching him with a gun still in his hand.

The girl turned to Derrick "Oh, won't you make him explain," she cried, "he's dying and if he'll only talk"

Derrick faced the officer "Here's my gun" he said, "I shot him—by accident—but it's all over now—arrest me if you like"

Barbara Derrick's eyes were fixed on the face of the man leaning against the tree, then she turned to Joe. "Maybe he'll speak to you," she said.

Joe waved her back. "I guess I'm done for," repeated the wounded man, "going to cash in now"

Joe knelt beside him "Got something on your mind, haven't you, buddy?" he asked, "You better spill it—you'll feel easier leaving it here—than taking it up there with you—it's about Derrick here—I know part of it already."

The other nodded feebly "That's right but you didn't know I had the goods on him once did you? Caught him cold —that was before he changed his name—Harris he was then —back in Maine. Well, I run across him by accident and tried to make him rob the bank—threatened to tell if he didn't—told him to meet me down at Kelso and I'd fix it up. He said he had a camp up here and to come up with him He fooled me and I went for him—in the scuffle the gun went off—he shot me all right." He gasped and his head fell forward

[illegible] and her father rushed forward to steady her. "It's all right, Babs," he said soothingly, "[illegible]"

Joe stood with eyes shifting from the dead man to the girl who was weeping in her father's arms. Little had he dreamed of running into a tragedy like this. Who would have thought that the quiet man who had been a trusted officer of the Kingsville bank all these years had once given way to temptation?

It was [illegible] found him again [illegible] second time on [illegible] of having his past revealed. And now [illegible] Derrick [illegible]

Joe walked back and forth [illegible] the whole story would come out he would lose his position [illegible] He turned to Derrick [illegible]

MISTAKEN LOYALTY

Derrick told him It was the old story of a [illegible] escapade in which he [illegible] burden of a reputation to [illegible] dearest friend and [illegible] from a [illegible] sense of loyalty The [illegible] and the [illegible] with Derrick It was then that he changed his name and started a new [illegible] Married [illegible] and watched his daughter grow up in the peace of a small town

[illegible] and then [illegible] the shape of [illegible] be told him [illegible] come to [illegible] about his scheme to rob the bank.

"I'm not the judge and the jury," said Joe, "and there isn't going to be any judge and jury —this man is no stranger to me His picture's down at headquarters—he's been wanted for some time—accidentally I ran across him. I called on him to surrender—he pulled a gun I shot—that's the story, Mr Derrick—and Miss Derrick, and now I guess if you'll go back to Kingsville just as though nothing had happened I'll get help and take care of this man"

Derrick's eyes suddenly filled with tears. He [illegible] himself to speak. "You don't know what [illegible]" he said brokenly

Barbara ran to him and threw her arms around him. "I say, thank you all my life" She too was almost sobbing

The story of the capture of "Slick" Williams made an exciting yarn and the explanation that Derrick made to the bank officers of his sudden departure was wholly satisfactory

Joe of course was a hero and the girls in Kingsville envied Barbara when he became a constant caller at the Derrick cottage

"I hope I'm not coming here too often," said Joe

"You couldn't," she answered.

IT'S CRANBERRY JELLY TIME

Eatmor Cranberries now on the market make a perfect jelly. Here's an excellent recipe:

Cook cranberries until soft . . . with 3 cups water for each 8 cups berries. Strain the juice through a jelly bag. Measure juice and heat to boiling point. Add one cup sugar for each 2 cups juice; stir until sugar is dissolved; boil briskly for 5 minutes. Pour into glass tumblers, porcelain or crockery molds and cover with paraffin.

8 lbs. (8 qts.) cranberries and 2½ lbs. sugar will make 10 glasses

FRIDAY, THE 13TH; THE HORACE MORISONS ARE [illegible] giving their dance for Miss Arria (Babbette) [illegible] that day.

MRS. HORACE MORISON
([illegible] Bachrach)

Arria is daughter number three of this pleasant family and there is one more to step out from Louisburg sq. There in the beautiful Italian castle on the hill, the two older daughters have been presented to Boston society, and indeed it needs a crowd to make it seem alive, it is so stiff and formal and ELEGANT.

In between times Mr. and Mrs. Morison have an apartment in Brookline. When Nancy came out about six years ago she was the first Boston debutante to slip into a shop from the ballroom floor, starting her business ambitions in a Fifth ave. salon. Miss Nancy was also a dancer of much talent and has kept it up for the enjoyment of her friends.

The next daughter, Miss Elizabeth, went to college. Now, Arria, and there is also a young son coming along. A very smart and talented menage. Mrs. Morison is DIFFERENT, quite different from New Englanders, but she came from the West, that's why. The progressive West. Three cheers for Chicago.

Leaders Sponsor Russian Revue

THERE WILL BE MORE EVENTS FOR GOOD CAUSES this winter than ever before, and that is saying a good deal where almost every other social event is in aid of some favorite charity of a group of women. The next one on the calendar will be under the auspices of Mrs. Robert G. Dodge as chairman of the patroness committee for the American premiere of Yaschna Yushny's Russian Revue, "The Blue Bird," to be given on the afternoon and evening of October 31 in Symphony Hall for the benefit of the American Association of University Women.

OTHERS ON THE COMMITTEE are Mrs. Talbot Aldrich, Miss Ada L. Comstock, Mrs. Henry B. Day, Mrs. Carl Dreyfus, Mrs. Ruth H[illegible] G[illegible]enough, Mrs. Roland Hopkins, Miss Ellen F. Pendleton and Mrs. Henry B. Sawyer and Mrs. George A. Perkins. There is a [illegible] of patronesses.

Miss Ada L. Comstock

Debutante affairs are happening thick and fast, but they seem to be small and informal for the most part. Very little is heard about them afterward. Last year was not exactly a LIVELY winter, take it all in all, but this one seems quieter by comparison. There is [illegible] a thing as letting the depression thing go too far. We are constantly hearing of cancellations. Poor Mr. Porter must wish ladies didn't change their minds so often and she is working on next year's list now. We suggest a winter in Florida instead.

MISS NANCY CLARE (WHAT a pretty name) de S. Verdi of Syosset, L. I., will be honored at a large house dance at Oakhurst, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chester W. Lasell in Whitinsville on Friday evening, Nov. 6. Over the weekend, Miss Verdi will have five house guests, Miss Jane Ayer of Chicago, Miss Marian Merrill and Miss Mary Campbell of Long Island, Miss Ruth Potter of Buffalo and Miss Elizabeth Ray of Troy, N. Y.

THE USHERS WILL BE men from Boston, New York, Providence. They will be entertained at a dinner before the dance by Mr. and Mrs. Sydney R. Mason of Whitinsville. This dinner will be for 24 guests. Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Bristow Draper will put up some of the guests over the weekend. It sounds like a very delightful affair. Miss Verdi is the daughter of Mr. M[illegible] de S. Verdi and the late Mrs. Verdi, who was Miss Lasell.

IF YOU KEEP YOUR SENSE of humor this can be a most amusing world in spite of the gold standard. A charming young thing who had recently returned from the Kentucky mountains where she had worked for the summer with the Frontier Nursing Association entered a small shop the other day and after purchasing something or other, maybe she was just LOOKING, we forget, having a few minutes to kill, asked the young lady tending the shop if she liked her work. The young lady replied that she did. "Are you open around six o'clock?" asked the young thing; to which the other answered that she was open around six. "And what time do you open shop in the morning?" persisted the slim one, "what—eight o'clock? That is terrible!" But she added sympathetically, "I suppose you are glad to get ANY kind of a job these days." The Fair Thing evidently thinks that working in a shop for one's living is less interesting than tending a shop on Chestnut st. for the benefit of the Kentuckians.

Junior Leaguers to Give Plays

At the first meeting of the Junior League Players it was decided that they would change the type of play to be given this year. Instead of the more elaborate productions such as have been given by them for the last two years, especially the "Blue Bird," which drew down so much praise for the players, they will now give simple plays only, in the Junior League Ballroom or the Elizabeth Peabody House, the latter being free performances for the settlement house children.

These also will be taken to various children's hospitals and convalescent homes. They decided that in this way the purpose of league would be more fully carried out with less expenditure and as much enjoyment as before for their young audiences.

Among the many other league activities, there is an athletic committee, of which Miss Ruth Sears is chairman. She has announced that the league has again been given the use of the Badminton courts by the University Club for Tuesday mornings, from 9 until 11:45, beginning Nov. 3. It is hoped by the league officers that full use of this privilege will be made by the members, for this as well as the swimming pool, also at the University Club, which they have been given the use of on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays from 9 to 11. Attention members!

Dog Show Will Aid Hospital

Mrs. John B. Hadaway of Elmwood rd., Swampscott, president of the Pekingese Association of New England, is busy these days making the final preparations for the ninth annual Pekingese show, to be held at the Hotel Statler, Saturday, Oct. 31, from 10 a. m., to 10 p. m.

The show will be for the benefit of the Shriners' Hospital for Crippled Children.

During the afternoon, tea will be served to all present. Mrs. J. Franklin Brown, Mrs. Howard T. Williams and Mrs. E. Godfrey comprise the tea committee, while Mr. William Goff is chairman of the reception committee. Mrs. Harold Valpey will have charge of the trophy table.

Mrs. Alice G. Ropes Is W. C. T. U. Head

North Adams, Oct. 23—Mrs. Alice G. Ropes of Wollaston was reelected president of the Massachusetts Women's Christian Temperance Union for the ninth consecutive time yesterday.

Others elected were Mrs. Lila D. Warren, Lee, vice-president; Mrs. Grace M. Putnam, Brookline, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Maud E. Fish, Brookline, treasurer; Mrs. Eleanor Wooster, Quincy, recording secretary; Mrs. Ida M. Faxton, Boston, assistant recording secretary.

Neat Pajamas for Study

By ANN ARDEN

THOSE EVENING hours that must be spent in study can be so [illegible] comfortable and gracious, too, when the lounging clothes are cozy and good looking at the same time.

MOST GIRLS like pajamas and never was there a more beautiful array from which to make a choice. They are inexpensive enough, too, to suit the most humble pocketbook. Those of silk are less liable to muss, but the cotton ones are so attractive that it is very hard to choose between them.

• • •

A DELIGHTFUL combination of [illegible] pictured. The trousers are of cotton print [illegible] was tweed [illegible] waist top has a neck-hugging turnover collar and four-in-hand tie, tucked fronts and tailored cuffs. The colors are gay yellow, rose and orange. The belt is of braided silk toned rust and black.

FANNING

Fleeting Fame. ↑ Heights, Depths.

Welter Dynasty. ↓ Lesson for Lou.

"Solitary Black Man, Stooping, Bending Low

Into the white glare of the ring lights in the Boston Ga tonight, will step a lean lithe, sinewy, pantherish black man a orter heavier thewed white boy whose tawny thatch and ing black eyes tell you is of the blood of the old French Can voyageurs and coureurs du bois, to battle 15 rounds for welterweight championship of the world. What an illustrious dynasty, the welterweight! Included in the list of those who the welter crown are some of the greatest ring men the world as seen—Paddy Duffy, Mysterious Billy Smith, Tommy id McCoy, Matty Matthews, Joe Walcott, Honey Mellody, id, Mike Twin Sullivan, Mike Glover, Ted Kid Lewis, Jack Bri ckey Walker. Of this illustrious line Joe Walcott— "The nt," "The Barbados Demon"—was the greatest of them st ring veterans will tell you that for his ounces and inches lcott was the greatest fighter that ever tossed leather. here is Joe, now? "Fame is fleeting," said Marcus Aure years ago. Old Black Joe now is employed as a cleaner in world's greatest temple of boxing, Madison Square Garden, York. But let "Don Cooper," the singer of sagas, tell you a him——

Solitary black man stooping, bending low,
Dusting famous pictures hanging in a row.
Sullivan and Dempsey, Wilde and peerless Gans
Pass in bold review 'neath his shaking hands.

Up and down the hallways slow he goes his way,
Scrubbing, sweeping, dusting through the livelong day.
Soon a picture greets him in a gilded frame,
Showing fearless Wolcott at the height of fame.

Duster poised and head erect, he proudly stares.
Now he is himself again and worldly cares
Fade, and body tense, defiance in his eyes,
Mighty Wolcott's challenge palls the very skies.

Solitary black man stooping, bending low,
Dusting famous pictures hanging in a row . . .

"Don Cooper."

That's literature, that verse of "Don Cooper"—a Page out of the Book of Life. And what has become of some of the other rulers of the welterweight realm? Paddy Duffy died long ago. Didn't we read Mysterious Billy Smith had passed away, last year? The last we heard of him he was in the real estate business in Vancouver. His adopted son was at Dartmouth. Invaded the professional ring like his illustrious sire. But unlike his foster Dad met with only mediocre success, and quit.

Kid McCoy—his right name was Norman Selby and he was the son of a Presbyterian minister—is in San Quentin Prison, California serving a sentence for murder. There is a movement on ot to secure his pardon.

Tommy Ryan is growing melons and selling real estate in California. McCoy once was a sparring partner of Ryan's. He inveigled Ryan into a title match under the subterfuge he was broke and needed the money. Thinking to pick up some easy money himself and oblige his sparring partner, Tommy gave the debonair Kid the match—and the title. The Kid was as crooked as his cork screw punch. The Corbett-McCoy fake brought about the repeal of the Horton Law in New York and sounded the death knell on boxing.

Matty Matthews is a doorman in the Forrest Theater next door to the Forrest Hotel, where Jack Sharkey often stops in his visits to New York, and which Johnny Buckley makes his Gotham headquarters. Matty has the most gnarled and broken hands of any fighter in the ring. Peering beneath a paper while on a subway train once, we noticed a pair of twisted and humped maulers resting on a pair of knees opposite us. We knew of only one such pair of hands. We made a wager with ourselves they belonged to Matty Matthews. We lowered the paper and—looked into Matty's smiling face.

The mighty Walcott, a sweeper and cleaner, in a great arena made possible by the tremendous profits of the Golden Age of Boxing. Dixie Kid died a pauper. For years he was an expatriate, living in London and making his living as a waiter. Honey Mellody died broke. Not so long ago his manager died penniless in New York and money was raised here by Boston friends to pay for his burial. Mike Glover died a victim of the White Plague.

Ted Kid Lewis is back in England campaigning in politics. Recently took a prominent part in electing Lord Somebody or other to office. His old playmate, Jack Britton, with whom he fought more than a dozen times, lost almost all his money in Florida real estate and now is engaged as a boxing instructor in the Down Town A. C., New York. Mike Twin Sullivan and his brother Jack are in the trucking business left them by their father. Mighty little of the money Mike Twin Sullivan, world's welterweight champion, made in the ring, went into that trucking business.

Old Marcus Aurelius said a mouthful, didn't he? "Fame is fleeting." Be it Jack Thompson or Lou Brouillard who walks out of the Garden ring tonight welterweight champion of the world let them remember Walcott, McCoy, Ryan, Smith, Mellody, Glover, Britton and others of the illustrious welterweight dynasty. Let Jack and Lou remember that if they mount the throne they are only King for a Day.

Who will win tonight? Who will we bet on—black or white? The encounter is in the lap of the gods. But the welterweight championship seems to like New England. Of the dynasty Paddy Duffy, Joe Walcott, Honey Mellody, Mike Twin Sullivan, Mike Glover, all came from Boston. Mysterious Billy Smith was from Maine and Jack Britton from Connecticut. Britton's right name is William Breslin. He got his ring name of Britton from a Chi go announcer. When Jack told him he came from New Britain, nnecticut, he barked, "Well, we'll call you Jack Britain." The wspapers printed it Jack Britton. So it has been ever since.

Lou Brouillard and Joe Walcott are of different hue but they hare one thing in common—phenomenally long reach. Walcott's ms were so long they used to be likened to a gorillas. Brouillard's each is greater than his heighth. The welterweight has a longer each than most heavies. The reach advantage he concedes over hompson may win the French-Canadian boy the world's welter eight championship, tonight.

Twenty-five years ago last Friday, Joe Walcott, black, lost his tle to Honey Mellody, white, here in Boston. Will Lou Brouillard, white, lift another world's welterweight crown from off black Jack Thompson's head tonight?

[illegible] Jumbo squad a last workout this afternoon in preparation for the Connecticut Aggies game tomorrow at Tufts Oval.

Harry Hymanson, 166-pound half, is still out because of his shoulder injury of two weeks ago, but hope is high that he may see a few minutes' action in the game.

Of the indicated lineup for tomorrow only Art Staffon, right [illegible], may be unable to play because of a severe cold.

[illegible] Lanna is filling Harry Hymanson's shoes creditably and Russ [illegible], the other regular halfback, is holding his own.

When [illegible] Staffon comes back to the squad and Hymanson is in trim again, the honors for wingback will be doubtful, for all four are of equal ability.

Tufts will start the following lineup: Crild, le; Lanberg, lt; Spaulding, lg; Capt. Kanpman, c; Cochrane, rg; Staffon, rt; Backus, re; Rogean, rh; Lanna, lh; Clark, fb, and Clayman, qb.

[illegible] arrived in Boston early this morning for their forthcoming game with Boston College at Fenway Park tomorrow afternoon.

Accompanying the team on its 1500 mile journey are Athletic Director Conrad M. Jennings, Head Coach Frank Murray of Maynard, Coach John L. Taylor and Student Manager Jerry Stemper.

The players who made the trip are Harold Beaton, Arthur Krueger, Francis McCarthy, Emerson Bachhuber, Floyd Ronzani, George Rosemark, Edward Rosemarynoski, Francis Mierzwa, William Luoma, Edward Aspatore, John Carroll, William Becker, Ernest Kuk a, Thomas Meagher, John Sisk, Eugene Ronzani, Rollie Halfman, Arthur Peterson, Donald Elliott, Marvin Bredow, Richard Drew, Jack Ewing, Henry Sands, Arthur Agostino, Walter Plewe.

Marquette Backfield Gives Team Punch

In the backfield is the real strength of the Marquette club. Coach Murray has three full sets of ball carriers who would be regulars on any team in the country. Led by All-American Johnny Sisk at halfback, the first string backfield is Gene Ronzani, quarterback, Peterson, halfback and Halfman, fullback.

The Marquette team left Milwaukee two days ago, coming halfway across the continent through Canada in easy stages, in order not to lose any practice. The players detrained several times on the way to work out.

Matmen Dodging George and Sherry

Alex McLean, matchmaker for the New England Sled Dog Club, which will stage the heavyweight wrestling championship bout between Henri Deglane, titleholder, and Jim McMillen of Missouri on next Thursday night at the Boston Arena, is finding it difficult securing opponents for Ed Don George, former champion, who will appear in the semi-windup bout, and Jack Sherry, who will be seen in the main preliminary.

Many of the big fellows are dodging the George and Sherry issues.

Eagles Develop Good Pass Defense

Boston College worked out at the Heights yesterday afternoon with the Jayvees putting on the Marquette plays against the regular outfit. With the varsity bottling up every attempt of the Jayvees to advance, Coach Joe McKenney believes that the Eagles have solved their defensive problems at last, especially against forward passes.

McKenney uncovered a fine ball carrier and blocker in the person of Halfback Frank Maloney, whose talent thus far has been hidden in the ranks of the third team. The presence of Maloney in the Team A lineup in a relief role seems to indicate that he will see plenty of service tomorrow.

McKenney announced his first string lineup would remain the same as last week with Di Venuti and Morro on the wings, Cowhig and Reynolds, tackles, Taylor and Whelan guards, Downes center, Freitas quarterback, Chesnulevich and Callery, halfbacks, and Capt. Kelly, fullback.

McKenney would like to use Johnny Dougan in the starting lineup for the former Manchester [illegible] the finest blocker on the squad. However he is afraid to [illegible] Dougan being injured in the opening minutes of play. [illegible] Dougan is one of the smallest men on the squad.

Mandell to Show in Preliminary Bout

Chicago, Oct. 23 (AP)—Sammy Mandell, former lightweight champion of the world, will return to the Chicago stadium, where he defended his title in 1929, as a preliminary boxer.

Mandell has been signed to meet Ralph Lenny, clever Jersey City welterweight in a 10-round preliminary to the championship battle between Bat Battalino, world featherweight titleholder and Earl Mastro, Chicago's contender.

MR. BOSTON

—By JACK CONWAY—

You'll find that Boston is big enough to stage any kind of a boxing bout when Young Jack Thompson risks his world's welterweight championship against Lou Brouillard at the Boston Garden tonight.

The show has caught on and will draw a near capacity crowd. The Garden will be able to pay Thompson $25,000, hand Brouillard $2500 and end up with a snug profit.

Mr. Boston

What did you ask about Old Man Depression?

He was flattened the other night and isn't going to try a come back.

Fifty per cent of the talk about depression is mental. Give the public what it wants and it will respond whether it is a championship boxing bout or a fussy afternoon tea.

Jack Sharkey and Primo Carnera attracted 30,000 persons to Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, on Columbus Day night despite the fact the mercury was down around 40 degrees. The gross gate was $117,000.

Merely another case of where the public was willing to pay for what it wanted to see.

If some of our business men, and I'm talking principally about the so-called big shots, would stop weeping and do a little more hustling they wouldn't have to use so much red ink.

I met Bill Kennedy, Summer st. merchant, in Jack Sharkey's hotel room following the Carnera bout. I asked Bill about business.

"Our stores throughout New England are doing more business than ever," replied Bill. "We have increased our sales, and are not worrying about the so-called depression. Of course we are all working a little bit harder than we ever did before, but work never hurt anybody."

Dick Dunn, general manager of the Garden, proved he had faith in Boston and also in the boxing game when he guaranteed Thompson 25 grand for the Brouillard match. Mrs. Dunn's red-headed boy has done mighty well since he came to Boston.

Leonard Says Hello

It was Benny Leonard, former world's lightweight champion, on the telephone.

"Hello, Mr. Boston," piped Benny. "I wish you would drop down to the gym to see me work. If you want to give me a test, pick any sparring partner you wish and I'll guarantee to knock him cockeyed.

"I'm weighing 152 pounds, and [illegible] be lighter after a little bit more work. I'll be at the ringside when Thompson battles Brouillard at the Garden. I'm looking forward to giving a good account of myself against Livan at the Arena next Tuesday night."

Teddy Hayes then added a few more words about Leonard's condition. Teddy says Benny will prove he can really fight when he tackles Livan.

Novices to Battle in St. Joe's Bouts

A number of novices, all anxious to get started along the fistic trail, will battle in the 135 and 147-pound classes tomorrow night, when Bill Cuddy stages his weekly tournament at Mechanics Building. Other classes, all open, will include 118, 126, 160 and 175 pounds.

What the 135-pounders lack in class and experience they will more than make up in numbers.

NOTRE DAME HAS EDGE ON PITTSBURGH ELEVEN

YALE HAS MARGIN ON ARMY IN CONDITION; HARVARD, TEXAS IN CLOSE FIGHT

By Eddie Casey

Harvard Head Coach and All-American Star

Eddie Casey will write an exclusive article for the Boston Evening American each Monday, Wednesday and Friday

Reversals of form, upsets, dramatic springing [illegible] power [illegible] minor teams and startling performances by supposedly good teams already have featured the 1931 football season. More upsets, more upsprings and possibly some more startling performances may be anticipated tomorrow when many of the foremost teams have major schedulings.

There are two games tomorrow which undoubtedly [illegible] public attention. One will be played between Notre Dame and Pittsburgh, the other between Army and Yale. The Notre Dame-Pittsburgh game is highly important to the gridiron followers because it will go a long way in deciding Notre Dame's position. Held to a scoreless tie by Northwestern a week ago, Notre Dame raced through Drake to gain 636 yards, pile up 28 first downs and score 63 points.

Football men who saw Notre Dame play Drake marveled at the power of the Notre Dame attack, the polish of the blocking and the general timing. Drake, of course, was not in the same class as Pittsburgh will be this week. Pitt is an undefeated team. It has seven veteran regulars. It has been brought along carefully with this game in view.

Jock Sutherland has seen four of his Pittsburgh teams play Notre Dame and not once has Pitt won. Two weeks ago chances looked much better for a Pittsburgh win than they do today. Granted that Drake was up to standard, Notre Dame will be a hard team to beat tomorrow.

Army Game Taxed Strength of Harvard

Army's defeat by Harvard a week ago tumbled Major Sasse's squad out of the undefeated class, and, in addition, the Harvard game took plenty out of Army, just as the same game took plenty out of Harvard. Rarely have I seen two teams hit so hard in an early season game. Rarely have I seen two teams forced to keep entirely on edge without a minute's letup from start to finish.

When Army goes into the Bowl tomorrow it will be without Sebastian and Stecker, and Elliott, too, probably will be sidelined. When Harvard plays Texas in the Harvard Stadium tomorrow, it will do so without the three center men who started against the Army. Hallowell, center; Jim Esterly and Henry Myerson, guards, are out of the intersectional clash with the 1930 Southwest Conference champions, and Esterly has been lost for the season.

Yale came tremendously in the week between its Georgia defeat and its victory over Chicago. Mal Stevens is getting his offense rolling, but what is equally important at this stage he has a brisk competition going on for team places between A and B team players. Yale, judging from Mid-West reports of its Chicago games, will come a long way every Saturday from now on. Certainly it will have the edge on Army in physical condition, just as Dartmouth a week from now may have an edge on Yale, and Harvard two weeks from now may have an edge on Dartmouth.

Yale-Cadet Fray in Bowl Is Tossup

Some football teams recuperate more quickly than others, depending upon the makeup and temperament of the players. Undoubtedly the Bowl game will be close, and probably a battle of backfields. I would not be surprised to see a long run or pass decide this game. In the Harvard Stadium game the Crimson squad should have a severe test with the Texas team, which probably will extend Harvard every inch of the way. Harvard looks for just as hard a fight as it had against Army a week ago and hopes for the same result.

Out on the Pacific Coast three teams have stood out this season. They are Southern California, Stanford and St. Mary's. Southern California meets California tomorrow. It is most unlikely that the victory score of Howard Jones' team in this same game a year ago, 74-0, will be duplicated, but Southern California should win under wraps. Stanford plays Washington and should win, too.

The Conference race this season in the Middle West finds three teams at this point of the season conceded to have best prospects. Northwestern has been looked upon as an outstanding team, and the success achieved by Ohio State over Michigan and Wisconsin over Perdue last week, puts both of those elevens in the top Conference bracket.

Ohio State found a much needed spark to crash through against Michigan a week ago. Whether it can maintain that spark tomorrow and defeat Northwestern is something else. Both teams have scoring attacks, and a touchdown either way with both scoring may decide. It would seem that Northwestern has an edge, but the manner in which State outplayed Michigan all the way indicates trouble ahead for Dick Hanley's team. Wisconsin plays Pennsylvania and might win by as heavy a margin as a year ago, when the Quakers were rolled under 27 points.

Penn has had trouble breaking away fast, while Wisconsin's form against Purdue was a revelation to the Middle West. Purdue, which was beaten by Wisconsin, looks able to swing back on the victory path against Carnegie Tech, and Michigan may recover from its mediocre play of a week ago in time to get set for Illinois.

In the South three teams to date have demonstrated their capabilities. Georgia, of course, has been running wild all season, using its regulars sparingly and playing games with three and four teams of players. Georgia should defeat Vanderbilt tomorrow and continue with Tennessee and Tulane as foremost Southern teams. Tennessee, which swamped Alabama, 25-0, expects no trouble from North Carolina, and Tulane should defeat Georgia Tech in their New Orleans game.

Southern Methodist is the only undefeated Southwestern team and has an easy romp with Centenary tomorrow. Probably the big test for the Southern Methodist team will come later in the season when it meets Texas, which has traveled 2000 miles to play Harvard. Rice was beaten by Southern Methodist a week ago, thus stopping its championship aspirations, which loomed high after it had beaten Texas.

Another exclusive article on football by Eddie Casey will appear in the sports pages of the Boston Evening American on Monday.

SPORTS REEL

Charley Callery, Boston College halfback, is an Eagle the Marquette team will watch tomorrow at Fenway Park. Callery is one of Joe Mckenney's dependables. Against the strong Golden Avalanche Callery will have a tough time gaining much yardage. Marquette is favored over B. C. The Eagles may take to the air, though, in an attempt to grab the victory.

After Harvard's own Barry Wood comes Albie Booth. Albie leads his Yale crew against Army tomorrow in the Bowl. Last week Albie's friendly enemy, Barry of the Crimson, made things miserable for the Cadets. The Mighty Atom will try to tie his Harvard rival's exploits against Army. (Int'l Photo)

Eastward ho! Four thousand miles nearer the rising sun—let's go! To the land of mosques and minarets—so different from our skyscrapers, stacks and steeples.

Let's see this strange, strange country. Let's see the land where the tobacco* grows in small leaves on slender stalks—to be tenderly picked, leaf by leaf, hung in long fragrant strings, shelter-dried and blanket-cured. Precious stuff!

Let's taste that delicate aromatic flavor—that subtle difference that makes a cigarette!

[illegible]

XANTHI . . CAVALLA . . SMYRNA . .
SAMSOUN . . famous tobaccos!

*Turkish tobacco is to cigarettes what seasoning is to food—the "spice, the sauce"—or what rich, sweet cream is to coffee!

You can taste the Turkish in Chesterfield—there's enough of it, that's why. Chesterfield has not been stingy with this important addition to good taste and aroma; four famous kinds of Turkish leaf—Xanthi, Cavalla, Samsoun and Smyrna—go into the smooth, "spicy" Chesterfield blend.

This is just one more reason for Chesterfield's better taste. Tobaccos from far and near, the best of their several kinds—and the right kinds. And pure, tasteless cigarette paper, the purest made. The many requisites of a milder, better smoke, complete!

That's why they're GOOD—they've got to be and they are.

Something different in a closed car

HERE is something quite different in a Ford car—a beautiful body-type specially designed and built for four people.

There's a growing need for a car of this kind. In many, many families a two-passenger car is too small—a five-passenger sedan is too large. The Ford Victoria solves the problem by combining the compactness of a coupe with just the right amount of room for four people. It's easy to drive—economical to run—and so distinctive in line and color that it brings an admiring nod of approval on every highway.

In interior finish, the Ford Victoria reflects the rich quality of a custom-built car. Choice of fine broadcloth or deep-piled, luxurious mohair upholstery. Quiet good taste characterizes the de luxe appointments. You have a feeling that everything has been carefully, expertly planned to be just right.

See this beautiful four-passenger Victoria at the nearest Ford dealer's and arrange for a demonstration. Here is a high degree of beauty, comfort, convenience and performance at low cost.

"Yes.

[illegible] I want a man who needs my companionship [illegible] That's the fundamental thing. I like to be needed—but not to be [illegible] mind you! I want a normal man, one calm-natured. Looks don't matter. I think I'd prefer a redheaded man, but I'd waive the point. No youth is not a requisite. I would not object if he had children. I love children. I want a man who would love homebuilding as much as I do."

Boston Visit Too Brief

The few hours I spent in Boston went only too quickly. Among my visitors was James Reardon, 28 years in the Hearst service. He is associate editor of the Boston Sunday Advertiser and a sort of self-appointed host to all Boston visitors. Mr. Reardon was greatly interested in the picture, 'Salomy Jane.' George W. Wilson, original sheriff in the stage play, he told me, lives in Dorchester, part of Boston. Leo Gaffney, editor of the dramatic Sunday page, was another visitor. He had much to say about Claire Windsor's popularity in Boston. Claire had just left town with the Al Jolson's "Wonder Bar" show. One of her devoted admirers was in Boston during the run of the play. Nick Young, dramatic critic of the Boston American, said: "Private Lives" had kept him out late. Sorry I didn't have time to see the play.

Meet Marshall Neilan, the author. You have known Mickey as director and actor, but he is shortly to make his appearance as the author of a book. Mickey has written plays before, in fact, the idea of "Hell's Angels" has been credited to him, but this is the first time he has written a book. He is calling his story "Looking Backward" and it deals with the pioneer days of the movies. Not just a commonplace history, mind you, but an intimate story of the happenings, of the doings of movie folk. Mickey, it is said, will call a spade a spade.

I suppose [illegible] she says [illegible] have had the good fortune. I'm sure it's [illegible] that I'm associated with such big pictures and shows that they overshadow just plain Irene Dunne.

Of course I admit that I'd like nothing better, if it were possible, than to have people remember me first by the names of the characters I have played, Mary in the latest picture, Sabra in "Cimarron"—than by my own name.

Star's Advice to Actors

"Set an ideal for yourself which you are able to attain. Study the great artists of the stage and see if you cannot surpass your goal. Under no conditions mimic anyone for no two artists play the same part in the same way. Develop your own personality," is the advice that Raymond Jones gives to the young actors of today.

STOCKS HIGHER IN WALL ST. DEALINGS

New York, Oct. 23—Advancing tendencies ruled for important shares in transactions on the New York Stock Exchange today.

Price trends were indecisive for a time after a reaction had followed a strong opening, but quotations firmed up definitely in the afternoon.

SENTIMENT IS BRIGHTENED

Confidence expressed by executives attending the semi-annual meeting of the American Iron and Steel Institute and the mildly cheerful tenor of the weekly mercantile reviews tended to brighten market sentiment.

The market put its best foot forward at the start, but soon encountered difficult going. Early gains of 1 to 2 points were largely lost by midday, but a slow advance set in duirng the afternoon and advances were regained.

Shares showing advances of 1 to more than 2 points included American Telephone, American Can, American Smelting, U. S. Steel, Sears Roebuck, New York Central, Chesapeake & Ohio and Union Pacific.

U. S. Industrial Alcohol was a strong spot, rising 4 points early, and retaining most of its advance. In the morning setbac, Nickel Plate lost 5, and Underwood Elliott 3.

Although some unfavorable earnings statements for the third quarter will appear during the next few weeks, steel executives seemed to fel that the worst had been seen, despite intangible character, as yet, of evidence of improvement. Speculative quarters were encouraged, but inclined to go slowly.

RETAIL TRADE GAINS

Weekly mercantile reviews spoke of further improvement in retail and whole sale trade, and maintenance of the better feeling recently evident. With the exception of coal, however, the heavier industries remain quiescent.

Wall Street was inclined to interpret the developments at the meeting of the Railway Executives Association as definitely constructive. Owing to the vague character of the Interstate Commerce Commissions's proviso that approved rate increases were conditional upon a pooling arrangement, it was felt in financial quarters that a satisfactory arrangement could be worked out.

Suspension of a Baltimore investment house may have contributed to the morning setback in the share market, but brokers generally were not inclined to attach much importance to it, owing to the limited character of the firm's business.

Advance in copper prices that seemed indicated yesterday when custom smelters temporarily refused to sell any more metal at 7 cents, failed to materialize, and electrolytic futures in the Londan market, which often foreshadow price advances here, failed to turn upward.

Nevertheless, it was said in the trade that there will probably be no haste in advancing prices, even if a curtailment agreement is finally reached by producers.

Copper Sales Made at 7 Cts. a Lb.

New York, Oct. 23 (AP)—Yesterday's hesitation of the smelters to sell copper at 7 cents a pound apparently had disappeared today. Despite good sales abroad, the smelters today indicated their willingness to dispose of the metal, delivered in the domestic market in limited tonnages, at the foreign low price of 7 cents a pound. Foreign copper sales early in the day totaled 4,000,000 pounds.

Cotton Carryover Largely Increased

Washington, Oct. 23 (INS)—The Department of Agriculture announced today that the total carryover of cotton on August 1 was 6,369,400 bales, as compared with 4,530,600 bales on the same date last year. Total American upland was 6,245,800 and 4,313,600 bales respectively, while the total American-Egyptian was 16,700 and 8100 respectively.

Grains Are Uneven in Chicago Market

Chicago, Oct. 23 (INS)—Grains were uneaven today. Wheat was ⅛c off to ⅜c up, corn ⅛c down to ⅛c higher and oats ⅛c lower to ⅛c advanced.

Wheat—Dec. 52½, March 55½, May 57-57⅛, July 57⅝-57⅞. Corn—Dec. 36⅜, March 38⅞, May 40⅞-⅜, July 42⅛-42⅜.

Crown Zellerbach Meeting Postponed

Meeting of Crown Zellerbach Corporation directors scheduled for yesterday, at which it was expecied some action on the preferential stock dividends would be taken, was postponed. No definite date has been set for the next meeting.

Moderate Advance Is Made by Bonds

New York, Oct. 23 (AP)—The bond market advanced moderately and irregularly today as trading in most groups was quiet. Dullness in Liberty and U. S. Treasury loans contrasted with the strength in the foreign group. The advance extended to the American government issues, however.

Bond Offerings in Week Are $20,625,000

STEEL LEADERS SEE CHEER

New York, Oct. 23 (INS)—Definite signs of business improvement were reflected today in statements from Steel Corporation executives attending the meeting of the American Iron and Steel Institute.

E. T. Weir, chairman of the board of the National Steel Corporation, stated business of the company has improved since Oct. 1 and added he believed the low point has been seen in the steel industry generally.

T. M. Girdler, chairman of the directors' board of the Republic Steel Corporation, said that, although the time for a busy fall season is about over, there are signs of better conditions ahead and the foundation is being laid for improvement in 1932.

Eugene G. Grace, president of Bethlehem Steel Corporation, said that, while there had been no improvement in actual business, the sentiment was a little better and some consumers are showing slightly more interest in their steel requirements.

City Ice & Fuel Income Set Peak

City Ice & Fuel Co. reports for nine months ended September 30 net income of $6,021,108 after interest, depreciation and federal taxes, a new high record for this period. This is equal, after dividend requirements on the 6½ per cent preferred and minority preferred dividends to $4.23 a share on 1,178,000 common, against net income of $5,683,249, or $1.08 a share, in the first nine months of 1930.

September net income was $1,085,987, a new high record for this month, against $983,433 in September, 1930.

Chain Store Sales Total Made Public

New York, Oct. 23—Forty-eight chain store organizations, including three mail order concerns and total sales of $297,121,481 during September, a decrease of 8.2 per cent from the like month last year, a compilation of E. A. Pierce & Co. shows. Aggregate sales for the same organizations for the first nine months this year were $2,809,787,759, a decrease of 4.4 per cent from last year.

Taking into account the lower prices prevailing for products, the dollar volume figures indicate a good increase in tonnage volume sold.

Fall River Mills' Merger Is Delayed

Fall River, Oct. 23—A further delay of one week in action on proposed merger of the Pilgrim Mills, Fall River; Pemaquid Mills, New Bedford, and Queens City Mills, Burlington, Vt., was announced by Pres. Draper of Pilgrim Mills.

The stockholders' meeting scheduled for Thursday has been postponed until October 29 to permit holders to withdraw approval already granted on proxies submitted to them September 22.

ADVICE TO INVESTORS IS FREE

Before you buy or sell stocks or bonds, you ought to secure unbiased expert advice. Send your investment inquiries with stamp to Frank H. Meloon, Financial Editor, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop Sq., Boston. All replies are made by mail direct.

TWO STOCKS

J. R. Lowell—I am a reader of your paper and should like information on buying Lambert and Nash Motor. Do earnings warrant current dividends?

Ans.—With quarterly payment of 50 cents a share November 1 Nash Motor will be on a $2 annual dividend basis, contrasted with $4 and $6 paid from February, 1929. Net for six months ended May 31 was 86 cents a share. Net for fiscal year ended November 30, 1930, was $2.78 a share contrasted with $6.60 in previous fiscal year. Lambert Company is still on an $8 dividend basis but the high yield at current levels makes continuance look doubtful. Unofficially, it has been said that earnings for eight months covered dividend needs for nine months. Net for six months ended June 30 was $4.77 a share. Net for 1930 was $9.52 a share, against $10.04 in 1929.

IGNORE SPECULATION

J. C. Medford—I am a working man, supporting a family. I have $100 in a savings bank and want to buy a cheap stock. I know nothing about securities but overheard some men discussing Richfield Oil. They said it was bought to advance in the near future.

Ans.—Richfield Oils is a mere speculation. A receiver was appointed for the company January 15, 1931. In a recent letter to bondholders the protective committee said that due principally to condition of oil industry and existing business depression it had been impracticable to present a workable plan of reorganization. Make no attempt to increase your slender capital through stock speculation. It may vanish. Keep the money intact in a savings bank and try to add something to it regularly.

CITIES SERVICE

I. N. N. Pepperell—Is Cities Service a good buy?

Ans.—Future prices are dependent on developments in the oil industry particularly as regards the price for crude oil, as we see it. Your enclosed clipping from the Boston Evening American mentions an increase for the last reported week in Californian output. The increase was small and decidedly lacking in significance.

Increase in Annuity Business Is Shown

Fidelity Investment Association, the country's largest institution devoted exclusively to annuities, reports volume of new contracts written for the third quarter of this year of $13,792,000, an increase of $1,332,000 or 11 per cent, over the same quarter of last year.

For the nine months of 1931 the volume reached $41,812,000, compared with $35,256,000 in the corresponding period of 1930. Resources of the Association of September 30th were $28,503,117 against $25,047,124 at the beginning of 1931 and comparing with $20,151,567 at the beginning of 1930.

D. A. Burt, president, says in a statement in connection with the growth of savings as evidenced by Fidelity and other savings institutions:

"The United States is building a foundation for national prosperity now faster than at any time in the past few years. It is estimated that our people are laying aside several hundred million monthly now in excess of their expenditures.

"This satisfactory accumulation of wealth is only temporarily withdrawn from the avenues of business and when it returns will provide a foundation for business improvement utterly lacking in 1929. At that time our people were not only spending all they earned but were borrowing at the rate of $140,000,000 monthly in order to buy more. I will leave it to your better judgment to determine which is the healthier condition."

CONS. FILM NET IS $328,228

Consolidated Film Industries net profit for quarter ended September 30 of $328,228, after depreciation, federal taxes, etc., is equal, after dividend requirements on the $2 preferred, to 24 cents a share on the 524,978 shares of common. In September quarter of 1930 consolidated net profit was $[illegible]722, equal, under participating provisions of the shares to 61 cents a share on the combined 400,000 shares of $2 cumulative participating preferred and 400,000 shares of common.

For nine months consolidated net profit was $1,152,0[illegible], equal to $1.05 a share on the 524,978 common shares against $1,7[illegible] or $2.15 a share on the combined 400,000 preferred and 400,000 common shares in the first nine months of 1930.

Participating preferred stock is entitled to $2 a share per annum, and after the common stock receives $2 a share per annum, both stocks share equally.

Railroads' Income Off in September

First seven railroads to report for September had a net operating income of $8,958,000, as compared with $12,893,000 in September 1930, a decline of 30¼ per cent.

In August these carriers had a net operating income of $4,71[illegible], as against $11,717,000 in the same 1930 month, or a decrease of [illegible] per cent.

Nevada Electric's Net Profit $24,006

Nevada-California Electric Corp. and subsidiaries reports a net profit of $24,006 after taxes, interest, depreciation, etc., as against $[illegible] in September, 1930.

Net profit for the 12 months ended Sept. 30 last totaled $786,735 after charges and taxes, as against $898,821 in the previous 12 months.

California Edison Earnings Decline

Gross earnings of Southern California Edison Co., Ltd., for September were $3,617,942. This compares with $3,789,866 for September last year, a decrease of $171,924. After deducting operating expenses and taxes, the net earnings were $2,450,749, as against $2,803,159 for the same month last year.

Sheffield Farms' Milk Prices Cut

New York, Oct. 23 (AP)—Sheffield Farms Co. has made tentative reductions of one cent on both quarts and pints of grade "A" and grade "B" milk, definite action being contingent upon a pending decrease in price by producers, L. A. Van Bomel, president, said.

London Close Mixed With Sterling Up

London, Oct. 23 (INS)—Stocks closed irregular on the London Exchange today. The pound sterling was up slightly at $3.92½.

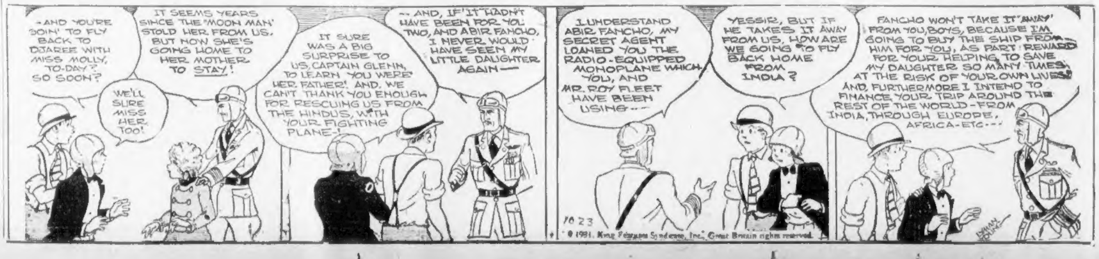
TIM TYLER'S FLYING LUCK

The Grateful Captain

By Lym Young



—AND YOU'RE GOIN' TO FLY BACK TO DJAREE WITH MISS MOLLY, TO-DAY? SO SOON?
IT SEEMS YEARS SINCE THE "MOON MAN" STOLD HER FROM US. BUT NOW SHE'S GOING HOME TO HER MOTHER TO STAY!
WE'LL SURE MISS HER, TOO!
IT SURE WAS A BIG SURPRISE TO US, CAPTAIN GLENN, TO LEARN YOU WERE HER FATHER! AND, WE CAN'T THANK YOU ENOUGH FOR RESCUING US FROM THE HINDUS, WITH YOUR FIGHTING PLANE—!
—AND, IF IT HADN'T HAVE BEEN FOR YOU TWO, AND ABIR FANCHO, I NEVER WOULD HAVE SEEN MY LITTLE DAUGHTER AGAIN—
I UNDERSTAND ABIR FANCHO, MY SECRET AGENT LOANED YOU THE RADIO-EQUIPPED MONOPLANE WHICH YOU, AND MR. ROY FLEET HAVE BEEN USING——
YESSIR, BUT IF HE TAKES IT AWAY FROM US, HOW ARE WE GOING TO FLY BACK HOME FROM INDIA?
FANCHO WON'T TAKE IT "AWAY" FROM YOU, BOYS, BECAUSE I'M GOING TO BUY THE SHIP FROM HIM FOR YOU, AS PART REWARD FOR YOUR HELPING TO SAVE MY DAUGHTER SO MANY TIMES, AT THE RISK OF YOUR OWN LIVES! AND, FURTHERMORE I INTEND TO FINANCE YOUR TRIP AROUND THE REST OF THE WORLD—FROM INDIA, THROUGH EUROPE, AFRICA—ETC——

M. Laval Arrives

France is realistic. She comes to the point. The precision and the clarity of her speech have made French the language of international intercourse.

Her Prime Minister has hardly set foot upon our soil when, in his first utterance in acknowledging the cordiality with which he is welcomed as a visitor, he at once quiets public speculation as to the specific object of his transatlantic trip. His words at the public welcome extended him in New York have the merit of candor and directness.

> "France is peace loving," says M. Laval. "Our history, our past both impose prudence. Our only desire is peace, but we set great store by our security. Governments and people should understand that security cannot be expressed merely in words and hopes; it should be organized. If France and the United States can agree and unite in an ever-increasing co-operation, we may look forward to better things."

Here we have it. Security to France means just two things—first, the maintenance of what she describes as her natural boundaries, and, second, her security from attack within those frontiers.

This security is forever menaced by the Germanic people on the northeast, and by the Italians on the southeast, who still look covetously at the choice areas along the Mediterranean wrested by France from Italy in bygone wars.

Under a plea for "international solidarity" to ward off the dangers which menace civilization, M. Laval reveals the perennial purpose of France to fortify her continental position with the aid of other nations.

The diminished regard in which France is held by her European neighbors may be one reason why her Prime Minister travels so far into the West to seek the support for which his country pines unceasingly.

But his appeal, however graciously worded, is addressed to an America which is firmly resolved NOT to be drawn into the ever-shifting balance of European power.

The United States has gone once to the rescue of France with a reckless prodigality, from the results of which we have not yet recovered.

What this country may do in the future the future alone can tell. But its decision will be reached upon a just appraisal of our past experience as the savior of Europe.

As to France, it will be difficult to forget her treatment of her war borrowings from this country. While we hear much today about her capacity to pay, we heard nothing during the war about her capacity to receive, and it will not be forgotten that France was almost the last of our European debtors to ratify the funding of her debt, at the reduced figures which had been agreed to by a succession of official French negotiators.

Nor will the America of tomorrow be apt to overlook the fact that the pressure for the revision and reduction of her debt to us from a France enjoying a degree of prosperity greater than any in her history, and with a gold reserve equalling, if not surpassing, thirty per cent of the world's visible supply.

M. Laval will find an America which has learned something from France itself in the arts of realistic approach and forthright speaking.

And notwithstanding anything which may be said by bank-hired economists or by our own breed of soft-headed internationalists, the American people will never ratify or tolerate the cancellation of the European debts.

A Banker's Good Talk

President Burns P. Hodgman of the First National Bank of Concord, N. H., declares that the banks of this country, including New England, have very largely ignored the needs of the small borrowers.

> "It is estimated," he says, "that from 80 to 85 per cent of the people of this country have been beyond the pale of bank credit, and that number have as much, if not more, need of borrowing than the other 15 or 20 per cent to whom the banks have been entirely willing to extend financial assistance."

Some of these bankers have found it much more attractive and much more profitable, to themselves, to shovel out billions of hard-earned American money to bankrupt Nations of Europe or to expose these savings of the public to the hazards and vagaries of the speculative market.

Thomas Edison, fifty years ago, was forced to go like a mendicant in search of loans to finance his marvellous inventions. We today have inventors, prospective home owners and founders of small industrial factories, all worthy people, who could not get more than the time of day in some of these institutions.

Where the banks have failed in their common obligation to the public, auto finance corporations, Morris Plans and a host of industrial loan associations have sprung up to satisfy the demands of small borrowers. These loans amount in a year to sixty-five thousand million dollars.

And their losses, Hodgman says, have been as small in ratio to their total business as the average bank.

"Therefore, it has been demonstrated that the average workingman seems to be as good a credit risk as the man with property."

Plain talk from a Yankee banker. And good talk. Because it is needed.

High School Drinkers

Liquor parties, amounting at times to drunken orgies, have been held in the past by boy and girl students of the Marblehead High School, according to charges formally and seriously presented to the school authorities.

"The whole topic is a distasteful one, and the least said about it the better," says Mr. Hill, the Superintendent of Schools.

Oh, is that so!

Well, the more said about it the better.

Evil thrives on secrecy, whether it exists among governments, among the most despicable gang of bandits or in the normal reaches of life.

When the calcium glare of frank and free discussion beats upon it, there is a fair chance of ridding the evil just as the warm sun and fresh air chase the germs of cankerous diseases

The people of Marblehead want to know the truth of these charges. If they are true, salutary means can be employed to discourage a repetition of them. If they are untrue, the school system is entitled to exoneration, which whispering cannot produce.

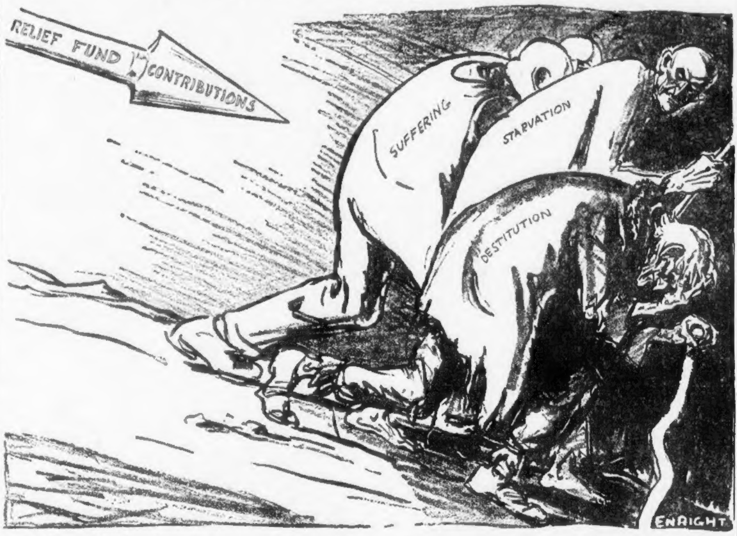
Your Dollars Sharpen the Point



Relief agencies throughout the nation will be sorely tested this Winter in the face of the suffering, want, destitution that follow in the wake of long periods of unemployment.

The demands made upon them will be greater than ever before.

That means that their funds must be larger than ever before, and it is up to YOU, Dear Reader, to do YOUR share in providing those funds. Money counts as never before. Now is the time to give.

It is your duty to SUPPORT YOUR LOCAL RELIEF organizations.

They're identified all right, and old man Prohibition is responsible for the sorrow of that dear little girl, "America's Prospects," and his helpers, racketeers, bandits, bootleggers, child-killers.

But what's the good of mere IDENTIFICATION if nothing is done?

Mr. Business Revival would like to see old man Prohibition attended to. But "liking" and "doing" are different.

These new additions to the Rogues' Gallery are evidently there to stay. Old Prohibition has created the rackets and the bootlegging for his criminal crowd. And the criminal crowd will see to it that nothing is done to interfere with HIM. Does he need money? He can have a roll big enough to choke a dinosaur.

It is said that "every people gets the kind of Government it deserves." We must deserve prohibition government, since that is what we're getting.

New York Day by Day -:- By O. O. McIntyre

Thoughts While Strolling

NEW YORK, Oct. 23—Thoughts while strolling: What became of the Algonquin Round Table? Gene Buck and Harry Silvey look alike. So do Smedley Butler and Jimmy Durant. Constance Collier's midget Scalyham—Lulcey. Poor Ralph Earton's apartment house. He know what it's all about now!

Isador Baline, a Riga, Russia, boy, who made good in the city. You know him as Irving Berlin. Of all street lights, those blue white ones in front of the Murray Hill hotel are my favorite. Wonder if anyone else serves lemon meringue pie as tall as Dinty Moore's.

Never a show girl as statuesque and graceful as Dolores. She's around Paris now, happily married, gray haired and still an eyeful. Wish Commissioner Mulrooney would quit calling it "lawr." Joe Laurie, Jr., back from trouping. He's fattening up, too.

Beaded pajamas. And ain't that sumpin'? Five empty buildings in the upper avenue shopping zone. Yet it was such in other panics. And filled up over night. Maury Paul always looks as though he had just popped out of a bath.

They say the wise ones are buying defaulted bonds when they touch 20. Al St. John. The jagged white skyline on Central Park South. Like a creamed explosion of the ocean. And that greenish phosphorous twirl of the Plaza roof. Coquetting ladies moving toward Broadway.

Chauncey Olcott steps lively although past 70. Whatever became of Orville Harrold? Almost zippy enough for a steaming bowl of chili. The kind that pops you out in a sweat. And keeps you swigging water the rest of the night. George Cohan's tan uppers. May Christie who chatters engagingly about society.

Jim Carroll, Earl's red-headed brother. Th Ritz bar in Paris named a potent libation for him—brandy, creme de menthe and pernod. Frapped and more powerful than a stinger. People still dress up to go places. Like you and I used to do. When cotton was high!

Stage crews are a race of workmen apart. Between acts they drift out of stage doors to sidewalks in shirt sleeves for a few drags from cigarettes, knotting in small groups. They must be huskies to do the scene shifting required and there is about them a tight lipped camaraderie that blusters in rough and tumble sky-larking.

They are dogged in their loyalty to those they like but dangerous to those they dislike. A stage dance director is still living today by what some regard as a miracle. He had long aroused the ire of a stage crew. In the wings one night a heavy pig iron bar dropped from the flies. It came so near it swished the brim of his straw hat.

Word from Paris to New York dressmakers may cheer holders of silk bonds and stocks. Stiff silks predominate in feminine dress this winter—silks that swish as in the old bustle days. Reversely, the silver fox as adornment is on its way out. Overproduction did the trick here. And flat furs will be the cat's. Furs such as astrakhan, caracul, galyak and shaved lamb.

To my notion plumpness is far more attractive, however, than the scrawniness of the times—especially that gaunt picked chicken look of the rigid diet. Perhaps it is because I came out of that pulse pounding era that produced such plumply pulchritudinous ladies as Lillian Russell, Della Fox, Trixie Friganza, Marie Cahill, Eva Tanguay and several others I once loved devotedly. And still do.

"Some of these days," writes Angelina S., "I'm going to sneak up and read a flattering poem I wrote about columnists and their clever work—the cleverest that is being turned out these days."

Try to catch me in a crowd so I can dig my toe in the carpet and look modest.

Taking Uncle Sam for a "Buggy Ride"

By Claude G. Bowers

THERE UNQUESTIONABLY is a campaign of slander in progress in Europe against the United States, and it is not aimed at our bucolic simplicity so much as at our institutions and our dollar. In a recent issue of the Magazine of Wall Street, John C. Cresswill discusses the rather insolent attitude of those who have come to us, time and again, for help, and always got it, under the caption, "Has Europe Taken America for a Buggy Ride?"

With the attack upon the dollar in progress now, with the almost gleeful prediction of some of our English "friends" that we are headed for a collapse, we are about to be approached with the proposition to lift at least half the burden of the foreign debt off the shoulders of the people who borrowed and transfer it to the back of American taxpayers. It would seem that in the hysteria of the moment Europe is not playing a very clever game. One does not ordinarily begin a plea for help by making faces at the person to be asked. The editor of the magazine makes a suggestion that might well be flashed to Washington:

> "The time has come when Americans might better expend less effort in trying to save the world and more on strengthening our institutions at home."

There's a message for Garcia!

It would be absurd to assume a position of utter indifference to whatever may occur in Europe. A complete collapse over there, however, would not necessarily mean utter ruin here, and there are countries in Europe that are in a better condition financially and in the matter of employment than we are in America. There is no indication that France is staggering, and Italy is not on the verge of bankruptcy. England is in a bad way, and Germany undoubtedly is in a serious plight. There is one lesson to be drawn from the condition in Europe to which reference is seldom made. That is, that Americans have enough to do at home just now to put their own house in order. The Administration leaders, with their backs to America, are anxiously gazing across the Atlantic, eager to get into the troubles over there; let them turn around and see what they can see in this country.

And let them do something about it.

We Saved the Allies and Reaped Ingratitude

Many of us have not shared in prejudices against England for many years, for we would prefer to be her friends. But we have not been particularly happy in the results of our responses to the Macedonian cry for help from that quarter. In 1916 and early in 1917, Lloyd George, from England, was sending us frantic messages to rush our soldiers to the battlefields of Flanders or England would go down with the Allies before the fire of Germany. "For God's sake, hurry," was the Lloyd George message.

And we hurried; and we saved the Allies from defeat; and the moment the Armistice was signed we began to hear that we had done nothing at all. We had the same experience with France, though it was not so gross. But the gratitude for service rendered at that time had cooled before the boys came home. That is the reason some of them, with bad manners of course, but with a lot of human nature, marched to the boats that were to bring them home singing:

"We've paid our debt to Lafayette,
Who the hell do we owe now."

Campaign of Slander
in Attack on Dollar

Then came the peace settlement and we took nothing. The other countries took all they could get. And ever since we have been helping out with money. Our bankers have loaned about five billion dollars to help out; and we scaled the debts owing us from these nations down by billions—only to hear that we are "Shylocks." Only the other day we loaned some hundreds of millions to England to save the pound, on the assurance that this would do the work, and almost immediately we got the news of failure.

And now a clever statesman is visiting us here to ask us to cancel half the debts and collect the other half, five and a half billion dollars, from the people of this country through taxation.

Isn't it a little stupid—or hysterical—for England and France just now to be engaged in a campaign of petty slander in their attack upon the dollar?

In view of our condition here, perhaps it would be just as well to give a little more attention to ourselves, and not so much to others. Our Administration leaders can well postpone world leadership for themselves until by doing an infinitely better job than they yet have done, they demonstrated some constructive and effective leadership at home.

Things We Can Do
to Help the World

There are some things that would help the world that we can do; and in doing them help ourselves. We did the world no good when we decided it would be wise to refuse to buy; and we did ourselves infinite harm, because we are now in a condition where we cannot sell. But the Administration, refusing to see that prosperity demands world trade, will not listen to the suggestion of scaling the tariff wall down; for it appears to feel that we are politically one with the rest of the world.

We are running a deficit of a billion dollars.

We have at least 8,000,000 breadwinners out of work.

That means, with the dependants, about 20,000,000 in distress.

Hundreds of thousands of farms will be foreclosed this winter, because agriculture is in ruins.

The mining industry is wrecked, and our indifference is converting the mining regions of Pennsylvania and Kentucky into breeding grounds for Communism.

With these conditions here at home it is not reassuring to find the administration leaders standing on the seashore, with their backs to this continent, peering anxiously into the wreckage in Europe and wondering what they can do about that; let them turn around and seek solutions for the problems here. Let them give us what we do not have today—American leadership in America, by—

Doing something to put the jobless to work and to reassure them as to the future.

Doing something to save agriculture from a common bankruptcy.

Doing something toward recovering the lost markets by getting rid of the tariff monstrosity through which we have lost them.

Doing something to bring the mining industry out of chaos.

Doing something—HERE!

Just Folks

The Corner Store

Men don't settle any more
Problems in the grocery store,
As they did long years ago,
When about the stove aglow
Hiram Smith and Walter Brown
Drew up chairs and sat right down,
Arguing from three to six,
Tariff, business, politics.

Since the chain stores came in style
There's no place to rest awhile,
Not a box is left about
For a neighbor to drag out;
An' the crackers an' the cheese
Can't be nibbled as you please,
There's no comfort any more
In the corner grocery store.

Youngsters now can't hang around,
Gathering wisdom most profound
From their elders, as we did
When I was a wide-eyed kid.
The proprietor himself,
Like the goods upon his shelf,
Now is just a package prim,
An' you merely nod at him.

This may better be for trade,
But at times I'm half afraid,
Notwithstanding what it cost,
Something from our lives was lost
With the passing of the shop
Where the old men used to stop,
Sitting friendly-like about
Talking all their troubles out.
